DISMISSAL OF A LUNACY AFFIDAVIT

Three Physicians Says the Woman Is Insane.

The lunacy affidavit filed against Mrs. Laura Murray in the probate court has been dismissed Three physicians pronounce her insane. Mrs. Murray is a patient at the Dr. C. E. Sawyer sanitorium Her husband, J. J. Murray, from whom she is estranged, lives at Coshocton. Her case is peculiar

The lunacy affidavit was filed by J. B. Yazel, a cousin, after attempts had been made by the authorities of Allen and Coshocton counties to send her to the Marion county infirmary Mrs. Murray had lived in Marion four years and a half when she moved to Lima to live with a brother, who is said to receive a salary of $150 a month from the C., H. & D. Railroad company. The Allen county infirmary directors first tried to get the Marion county infirmary directors to take Mrs. Murray in charge. After investigating the case the local infirmary directors refused to accept the woman as a charge. She was then taken to Coshocton by the infirmary directors of Allen county, but the authorities of that place refused to accept her as an inmate of the infirmary there, and one of the poor-house officials brought her to Marion. Since then she has been a patient at the Dr. C. E. Sawyer sanatorium. Her husband is said to be paying for her treatment there.

COMMON PLEAS.

County Clerk W. W. Klinefelter received an order from Judge Daniel Babst, Thursday, annulling his order of May 3 with reference to the receivership of the Marion Manufacturing company, in which action Henry Seiter is plaintiff. The judge makes practically the same order again, except that instead of allowing the attorneys for the plaintiff eight per cent. of the amount collected by the receiver as compensation the new order reads: "The attorneys of plaintiff to the receiver as their compensation are allowed a sum equal to an amount on the sum collected by the receiver, as is allowed under the rule fixing compensation in partition cases."

MRS. C. F. KRANER'S MANY MISFORTUNES

Death of Son Followed by Series of Troubles.

SHE IS CAUGHT IN VERY BAD RUNAWAY

Clothing Torn Off and Somewhat Injured—Men Traveling with Corpse Lose Their Way on the Prairie in the Darkness—They Finally Reach Destination—Day of Trouble.

To have suffered the troubles of a life time in a period of less than three weeks was the experience of Mrs. C. F. Kraner, of Olney avenue, who went to the bedside of her dying son in New Mexico and returned home with the corpse, Tuesday morning. Circumstances surrounding the death of Earl Kraner, a victim of consumption, were very pathetic, while the mother of the victim met with some thrilling experiences and heart-breaking incidents after the death of her son.

Earl Kraner, who gave up a responsible position in a railroad office on account of his failing health, died on the claim which he had taken one year ago last October. The claim, consisting of 160 acres, was located five miles from San Jon, a small mining village without any railway facilities. It was thirty miles from the claim to Tuscancari, the nearest railroad station.

It was on his death bed that he had said to his mother, "Take me back to dear old Marion to be buried," and his wish was complied with. He died at 1 o'clock in the morning of April 27. His mother, his wife and four friends were at his bedside at the time and even the strong-hearted westerners turned their faces and wept as the spark of life passed from the young man. Immediately following his death two of the men gathered boards about the place and built a box for the remains, while the other two gathered cotton in which to lay the corpse. This being finished the remains were placed in the box and a team, the property of the victim, pulled the two men with the corpse across the prairie towards Tuscancari, where the body was prepared for shipment home.

Enroute to the railway station the men lost their way on the prairie in the night and over five hours were required to make the trip. To be lost on the prairie was a thrilling experience for the men, but not to be compared with the experience of the mother and wife in making the trip.

The mother and wife of the victim started on the trip over the prairie several hours later. They were being driven in a buggy by one of the men, and after going some distance their team became frightened and ran away. The three occupants of the rig were given a thrilling ride down a rocky hill and over a narrow bridge. After crossing the culvert, the buggy struck a post and the kicking horses freed themselves from the rig. All three occupants were thrown over a wire fence into a field, striking on their heads. Mrs. Kraner's clothes were almost completely torn from her, while all were badly scratched and injured to some extent. The man retained his hold on the lines and, with the assistance of two Mexicans, the damaged buggy was fixed to some extent and the journey continued.

On reaching the railroad station, Mrs. Kraner waited the arrival of her son, Wells, who secured a leave of absence from his ship, which had landed at San Francisco, and said he would meet her at Tuscancari. After a wait of two days she received a telegram that he had been refused a leave from duty. To become the owner of the claim which her husband had taken, the widow will have to reside on it for twelve months as her husband had secured a leave for six months and resumed his railroad duties up until two months before his death.

Early Morning Figures

Chicago May 1 With the early morning reports of the cities of tornadoes and electrical storms that swept the Mississippi valley Thursday night it is now known definitely that 182 people were killed more than 700 injured and no less than forty towns more or less damaged by the storm That the figure will be still further increased as communication is opened with many towns that have been cut off by the storm seems equally certain

The greatest loss of life at any one point is reported from Bee Springs Tennessee where the death list numbers twenty Practically the entire town was wiped out and details are still lacking Tennessee in fact bore largely the brunt of the storm and the death toll in the state is large

At Medina four were killed last night the victims being W O Smith and son Willie and two children of J P Turner Mrs Mary Smith Miss Anna Bland Hahn and Mr J P Turner are fatally injured

Body Blown Away

At Clarksville Tenn one man was killed and his body blown 200 yards from his wrecked home Five persons were killed at Franklin four at Hillsboro were killed in one house while at Somerville three inmates of the papers home were killed, the structure being entirely wrecked Other Tennessee fatalities include two women at Troy two at Quito and fifteen at Fayetteville

Arkansas sustained the most heaviest loss of life the toll standing with eighteen dead at Caddo Gap where six were also left seriously injured At Whatley and in and around Brinkley where the entire town was destroyed a score of people were injured and at least two killed At Marion six persons were killed and at West Marion the entire family of John Young numbering four members perished Fort City Arkansas also numbers its dead and Mammoth Springs reports eight dead and forty injured

Southern Missouri Suffers.

Southern Missouri likewise suffered heavily from the same storm evidently that swept Arkansas At Golden Mo one citizen per one reported and thirty two injured At Alton six were killed and fifteen injured In St Louis two are dead and twenty injured While reports are still of two dead and a score injured at Alton Weather in southern Missouri following the storm has dropped almost to the freezing point and is causing great alarm to the fruit crop

Mississippi perhaps came nearest with heavy list of dead At Horn Lake where frightful devastation was wrought by the storm at least eighteen are dead and seventy injured The victims here are largely negroes employed on the plantations One of the curious things was to find in the branches of a tree that was hurled across the Illinois Central track quilt with both ends crushed in crawling out and there in appreciation of the storm in time to prevent a wreck

Prominent People Killed

Besides the negro dead at Horn Lake the list includes a number of prominent people among whom are George McLeod Mr Croft Mr Peck Mrs McPeak J J Donald and a son of J S Mck Near Amory Mississippi four men on a hand car were hurled into a river the bridge across which was swept away as they reached it but only one of them was drowned

Northern Alabama likewise suffered heavily from the storm Danville reports four dead and twenty injured Harms five dead and fifteen injured while scattering reports from various points in Marion county tell of four dead and three injured

While the fury of the storm was spent in the southern Mississippi valley yet scattering reports of death and damage are being received from Illinois Indiana Kansas and points still Illinois was especially hard hit four people being killed at Texas City

A very conservative estimate has been placed on the property damage but it will reach into the millions In the forty or more towns visited by the storm from one to forty fifty and sixty houses if not the entire town were wrecked This too does not take into consideration that hundreds of country houses and plantations that were wrecked in the half dozen states affected Damage blowers to railroads rail telegraph and telephone companies will be very heavy

Missionary Paints Pen Picture of Siege of Adana

HEMMED IN BY FANATICAL MOB

British Consul Furnishes a Guard for Americans

The Guard, However, Deserts When the Fighting Becomes Serious Rogers and Miner Are Shot Down While Fighting Fire That Threatens To Burn School Buildings Children Marched to Safety

Adana Asiatic Turkey via Constantinople May 1 A graphic picture of the conflagration started during the first days of the massacres in Adana has been written by Miss Elizabeth S Webb a missionary of the American board from Punker Hill Ill who is attached to the girls' school one of the principal danger point in the city Miss Webb writes

Our friends came to school as usual on Wednesday April 14 Although we feared that there was a good deal of unrest in the city we went on with our recitation for a school entertainment which was to be held the next day Soon firing began in the city and before noon things were in such a disturbed condition that we were afraid to send the day scholars home The girls were too excited to study so there was a constant sound of firing We ourselves tried to go on with our usual meeting but the reading of the report was interrupted by the screaming in the streets and the shooting

Mr Chambers attempted to go to the government buildings for a guard but he found it impossible to get through the mob and was forced to return Two of our Turkish children were present and we thought it would be possible to send word of our danger by a Turk who had come to take them home Accordingly notes to their father and to the governor were written but there were no responses

As night came on the flames began to flare up in all directions and we were fearful that the rioters would break into the school buildings Finally about 9 o'clock there came a knock at the gate and in walked the English consul You can imagine our relief at sight of him He had heard of the disturbances and had come from Mersine to my house to consult Major Doughty Wylie He could stay only a moment but he left three of his own guard of Turkish officers to take care of us

Fire Returned From Minarets

All through the night we actually seemed to be in a state of siege The three soldiers kept firing from the minarets and the fire was returned from the minaret house so near by In the morning our guard discovered whether it was a new discovery or not I don't know that the men in the minaret house whose fire they had been returning were Turkish soldiers and that others who had been in our ranks upon us were friends whom they knew by name After a good deal of parleying the firing on our buildings stopped for the time being Finally in spite of the fact that the consul had said they must remain until he returned the guard insisted that they should leave We urged them to stay but they climbed the wall and ran away

If our buildings burned the Chambers house must burn also Then where could we go for safety Our only safety seemed to be to quench the flames We women and girls carried water while the men cut down the fences and an old house on the corner of our yard And on the opposite side of the street was also torn down and we thought in this way that the progress of the fire could be stayed About this time we were horrified to learn that Mr Rogers and Mr Maurer had been shot It seemed that they had been fighting the fire and were not with the others in cutting down the sheds They were brought into our dining room Mr Maurer already was dead and Mr Rogers only lived a few minutes The Rev Stephen R Trowbridge who was at Tarsus at the time escaped although a bullet took off his hat

Guard Deserts

A new misfortune overtook us our guard of nine men disappeared and then school opened Time came to move to the hills where the girls were seated quietly within Form to tell them what had happened would only cause a panic of fear We have done all we can now let us pray

Before I had finished praying the Turkish officials with whom he was patrolling sounded in the street Unfortunately he could not spare a guard for us but promised to send one immediately It was a terrible situation women and children practically alone in the building a murderous bloodthirsty mob outside with knife and bullet for the Armenians and the English in their homes To add to the misery there were the dead on the floor below and the widow of one of them Mrs Rogers with her infant boy six weeks old to comfort

The flames seemed to be fighting fairly died out but fire could be seen in all parts of the city and the sound of shooting was constant The British consul had promised us a guard but the afternoon and evening passed and none came We could not understand it The following day we learned that Major Doughty Wylie had been shot in the arm

That night some men from the Government Hospital commenced to patrol the street about our building The sun now gave Adana a ghastly appearance Zeitun Exhibizeh and Hadjin had been pillaged and robbed on pandemic had reached the city of Cilicia Soon to attack Our city's population is split up pell-mell of every Armenians Assistance was sent up on both sides and on the part of our young men who intended only to frighten the rioters and if successful to drive them out Our arms were called to those below We are brothers don't fire and asked them to send one man to confer with a representative of our side

Came In by Hundreds

This was agreed to but in place of one man hundred rushed to come They demanded that we give up our arms but with their many mob this was not all Finally Mr Trowbridge talked with them from a window this to no avail The greatest danger of course was for the girls and we decided to take them to Mr Chambers house Seemingly without fear they marched out in order two and two across the street to the house of Mrs Wallace the English nurse then through a hole in the wall which had been opened for an emergency through the yard and into the street again where they rushed the Chambers gate

I can not describe the crowd the noise and confusion in the house and yard Refugees cowered everywhere Both house and court were nearly filled before our arrival but we added to the number more than 100 from our house and about 50 girls and teachers Our girls and teachers were utmost"

THEY FEAR FOR THE PRESIDENT

Who Has Become Unconscious Speed Maniac

FRIENDS OF TAFT BECOME ALARMED

Over the Speed Being Made by His Chauffeur

The Latter, Always a Rapid Driver, Has Been "Hitting It Up" More and More and Now Drives His Car as Though Competing in a Vanderbilt Cup Race—Makes Fifty and Sixty Miles an Hour

Washington May —President Taft has been in unconscious peril himself and his friends are apprehensive that he will figure in a serious smash up if he continues riding at the terrific pace his chauffeur now maintains

Three or four times a week he dashes over the suburb roads at the rate of fifty or sixty miles an hour and even when within the limits of Washington city at times he whizzes at almost express train speed Although his driver is an acknowledged expert those interested in the executives safety insist that it is but a question of time when a tire will explode a bolt will fail to work or some piece of machinery will give out It requires no stretch of the imagination to predict what would happen to a man of the president's bulk if he were tossed into the air from a flying automobile

Robinson the president chauffeur was formerly the driver of General Bell's automobile and when employed in that capacity by the chief of staff of the army could not be induced to go at speed in excess of 25 miles an hour

His Head Swelled

Since his elevation to his present job however Robinson has been getting more and more rich each week until now he drives his car as though he were competing in a Vanderbilt cup race The president does not realize the actual pace he is making for he is not very familiar with automobiles and moreover he has confidence in the ability and judgment of the man at the throttle As he figures that the chauffeur knows his business he merely sits back comfortably in his seat and enjoys the sensation

Not so the president's companions on the rides who know more about the possibilities and probabilities of accident They watch the speedometer with fear and trembling and when they can stand it no longer order Robinson to slow up Two or three times within the last week times when the president's chief secret service bodyguard has called over and over to the driver when he chauffeur has disregarded his insistent demands for less speed

One of these days you are going to find the president if you keep this up Slowly said to Robinson on the front trip

NEW PROBLEMS TO CONFRONT THE LAWMAKERS QUICKLY

Legislation as to Smuggling by Use of Airships—What It Will Be Possible for the Lawbreakers To Accomplish.

In four years' time we may be able to say that flying is common. It may, perhaps, still be looked upon as a venturesome practice and among the general community may not be exactly an every day experience, but most well-to-do people will have made a trip and many will own machines and make almost daily runs.

It is then that new laws and regulations will have to be adopted. The "rule of the road" in the air must be settled, as also the question as to whether international frontiers are to be respected, and if not whether universal free trade must result. Then comes the subject of the ownership of the air above private property. Finally we must consider the means by which laws may be enforced and the registration and identification of aerial machines carried out.

Hitherto international frontiers have been fixed by natural divisions of land and water, such as the sea coast or river bank, or clearly defined strips of ground. Such lines of demarcation are not easily crossed by those who wish to do so unseen and without interruption. But in the air it is different. Here, no natural boundaries exist, nor can artificial obstructions be erected so as to be insurmountable by airships.

We are then called upon to answer a most vital question. Are aeronauts to be allowed to traverse these frontiers without hindrance, or must they descend at frontier stations to report themselves? If the former many laws and regulations now in force would be affected. Those regarding passports, alien immigration and the like would be seriously upset.

But a far more serious matter is the collection of customs. Even supposing it were not possible to convey large cargoes of goods, and there is no good reason why this should not be done some day, still it would undoubtedly be possible to carry parcels of 100 pounds or so. If such an amount can be taken through the air free of duty it would manifestly have to be allowed equally to land travelers. Considering, too, the rapidity and ease with which machines are likely to travel they could be employed continually going to and fro over the frontier, and so transporting large quantities of dutiable goods.

Either customs must be entirely done away with or we are faced with a second alternative, that all aerial vessels must descend at the customs houses to declare their cargo. Though in the ordinary way it might be possible to enforce this by the imposition of severe penalties on any one detected in evading it, yet so great would be the opportunities for smuggling, especially in the dark or in misty weather, that it would without doubt be easy to ply the nefarious trade. The air going smuggler would not be bound as with his maritime prototype to land at a favorable spot on the coast: he could travel far inland before disembarking. It seems impossible to enforce any law as to machines being compelled to descend at a frontier and this implies that customs in the main will have to be abolished.

Over the vast fields and woodlands of the country who is there to prevent the progress of the airships? And if they pass high up in the skies who could find any valid objection to such traffic? With private gardens and buildings and with machines skimming along a few feet above them the case may be different, but where can the line be drawn? How can an aeronaut distinguish between a field, a park and a garden? Then we must consider the case of inclosed grounds to which the public is admitted on payment, such as cricket and football grounds, etc. It will obviously be impossible to prevent aerial travelers from hovering over such and watching the sport without payment. Still this is not likely to become a really serious matter.

It is no good making laws without the ability to carry them into effect, and this is one of the greatest difficulties presenting itself to the would-be legislators of the airway. The answer to all the difficult questions which we have summarized may be said to depend entirely upon the possibility of bringing to book the lawbreakers. Even supposing a regular service was inaugurated of police patrolling the air in extra swift flyers they could seldom follow and catch up transgressors, since it would not often be possible to convey the information to them in time. There can be no doubt that an intricate problem is now confronting us regarding the amending and making of laws to regulate that traffic which some of us believe will soon be darkening the air above our heads.—By Major Baden-Powell.

Nearly everybody's sense of duty is afflicted with that tired feeling at times.

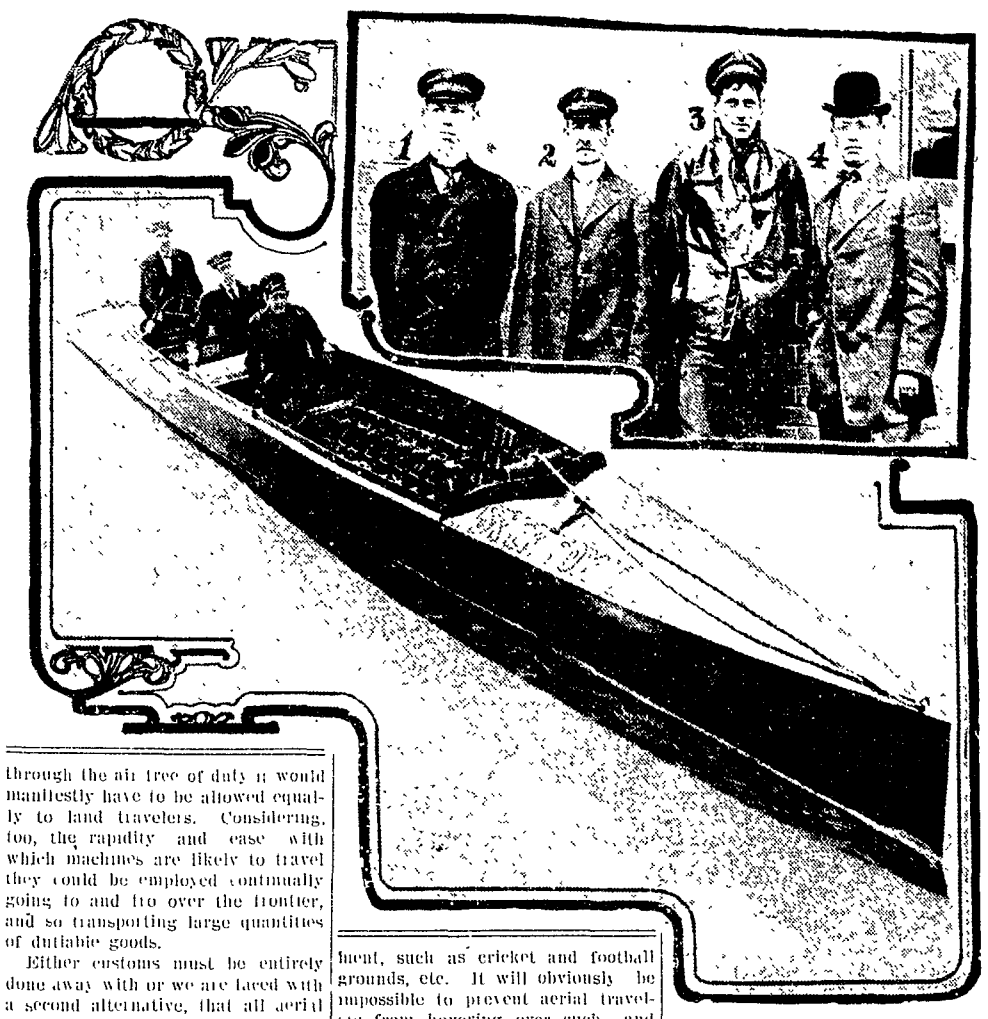
MOTOR BOAT AND CREW ON LONG TRIP TO URGE IMPROVEMENT OF WATERWAYS



An event which is of interest to all who are in touch with the campaign for the improvement of the waterways of the Middle West is the journey of M. B. Dean, of Cincinnati, in his motor boat, the Bi'er Fox, from his home city to New Orleans by way of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Mr. Dean is accompanied by three other men and carries letters from Governor Harmon, of Ohio, to the governor of Mississippi and the mayor of several cities along the route asking their cooperation in the effort to restore river transportation. The purpose of the trip is to point out the commercial possibilities of inland water transportation. Mr. Dean and the members of his party are shown in the accompanying illustration. They are: (1) M. G. Dean; (2) Harry Dawes, pilot; (3) William Stephenson, engineer; (4) M. B. Dean, owner. The rapid work on the Panama canal has added impetus to the fight for the improvement of the Ohio, Mississippi and Missouri rivers. It is believed in the Middle West that the completion of the canal will change the commercial topography of the country and that the restoration of river transportation upon such a scale as it existed forty years ago is inevitable.

GREAT QUESTION FOR THE MEN WHO ARE MUCH DISSATISFIED

Those Who Find Themselves in Positions They Feel They Have Outgrown—Hesitate To Make a Change.

Thousands of young men today find themselves in positions which they feel they have outgrown, and who, looking ahead in the establishments with which they are connected, fail to see sufficient future for them to remain longer in such positions—if they can help it.

But inevitably the question which *follows upon the heels of this con*sciousness is, What am I to do about it?

No man ever will or can frame a practical, general scheme of advice which will even approximate the answer to such a question. Not even a constituted, practical advisory board designed for such a purpose could venture that advice in individual instances if the board were called upon to assume the risk that might be attendant upon it. It develops upon the questioning young man himself and the conditions affecting no two men can be exactly alike in even material details.

One of the first deterrents which may occur to the conventional young man in such a position is that hoary axiom, "A rolling stone gathers no moss." Then in the next instant he may recall that other trite philosophy, "Nothing ventured, nothing won." He can't reconcile the two as in any way applicable in his case. Such observations seldom ever do fit a fixed condition. They are about as practicable as would be the discovery of the "fourth dimension."

In my experience of men of the world, too much fabled emphasis has been laid upon the accomplishments credited to successful individuals who, through a fixed, unswerving purpose, moved forward under all manner of handicaps to the full attainment of an ambition. So much of this has been talked and written that it is proving a detriment, often, to young men who, without such fabulous history, might have ventured more or less blindly and yet won enough to take the risk?

Not one of these successful men in fifty really reached his goal according to his own plans and methods! If he could see it he would realize that he has shifted, modified, changed and backed up on half the plans he ever figured on as certainties.

Moving this way toward his ends this successful type of man has accumulated either money or influence or both, with which the force of his own efforts has been increased proportionately. He has been enabled to take larger risks without chance of ruin. In fact, he learns how to take risks and accept the condition as a matter of good business—something which the young man knows nothing about until he has made a first move out of an unsatisfactory position.

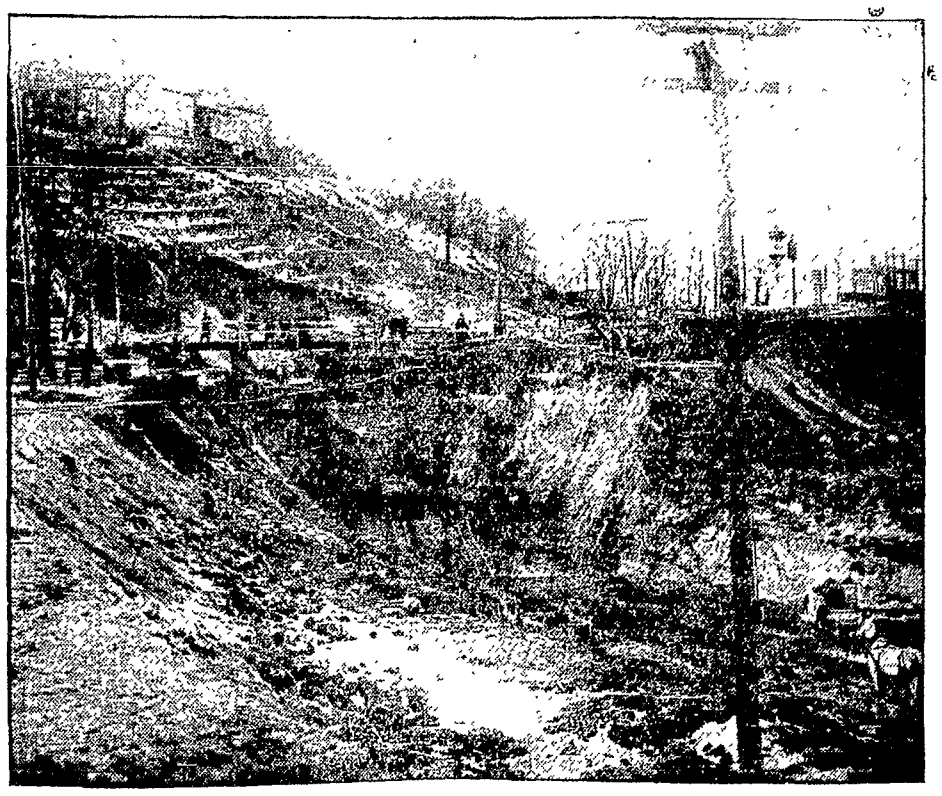
Imagine a young man who has been two or three years in discovering that he is fitted for something better than he finds hope of attaining. He may recall the difficulties and discouragements which he faced in getting that first opportunity for proving himself. Just in proportion to these difficulties, the element of risk in breaking loose from his place will emphasize itself. "Out of a job" is no pleasanter in sound because the idle one resigned from his former place. But to be out of a job may be the one inevitable condition which he must accept in order to better himself. Has he nerve enough to take the risk?

He must satisfy as to the sufficiency of his nerve. To do so surely he must satisfy himself as to his capabilities. Capability without opportunity to prove it, is useless. But with capability of which he is certain and with nerve of which he has no doubts, this dissatisfied young man holds a long, strong lever with which to open the door of opportunity.

There is an incentive for this young man to take this risk in the fact that no wise employer of men wants a dissatisfied man in his employ. The employer desires that his employes look to higher positions in his establishment. This is desirable ambition. But the employe, dissatisfied with his present place and having no hope of anything better from his employer, sooner or later must degenerate into dead timber. He won't be able to escape the fate and he won't be able to conceal the fact from his employer. The chances are that remaining where he is will be only to put off an inevitable day when he will be asked to quit.

To the dissatisfied young men, then, I may say: Be sure of your fitness for that something better; to be sure of your nerve and grit; consider that the element of chance is not to be eliminated. Then move—or decide to stay where you are just as long as you can.—By John A. Howland.

COSTS SOO LINE MILLION DOLLARS TO ENTER THE CITY OF ST PAUL



St. Paul, April 30.—In order to gain its own entrance to St. Paul, the Soo line, with which the Wisconsin Central has just been consolidated, is spending $1,000,000 on tunnel work. Its tracks will be carried in succession underneath the trackage of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railways, and after crossing the present railway lines into the city, the road must bore through high bluffs which block its access to terminals acquired during the past three years. The site of the new terminals includes what was once an exclusive St Paul residence district. Old mansions dating from the early settlement of the city have been razed, and solid blocks of homes once surrounded by beautiful grounds have been completely blotted out. In addition the surface of the ground over the entire area is being cut down many feet, an enormous amount of excavation being necessary before the railway can obtain a proper level and avoid excessive grades.

JUDGE WANTS TO KNOW CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE

Why Harry E. Himminger Goes to the Bad.

GRANTS THE DIVORCE AFTER QUESTIONING

Plaintiff States Husband Is a Fine Young Man When She Marries Him, but Becomes a Gambler and Is Guilty of Immoral Conduct. Notes of Common Pleas Court.

After severely questioning Mrs. Carrie Himminger in a censuring tone, last Saturday, Judge B. G. Young granted her a decree of divorce from Harry E. Himminger. He also directed that the defendant pay her $500 alimony in payments of $25 at once and $10 a month.

The plaintiff brought her action, June 1, 1908, and charged her husband with immoral conduct. She named four or five corespondents. Her attorney, Lloyd DeGolley, read several letters as evidence. One of these letters was from Detroit and was from "Little Myrtle," whose gushing sentiments caused the court-room listeners to smile. The attorney read about half of it, when he declared:"

"The court had better read the rest; I haven't got the nerve to do it."

Judge Young slowly read the letter, then proceeded to ask the divorce applicant a number of questions. He wanted to know if she knew that her husband was a gambler when she married him; how long they had gone together, and what caused him "to go to the bad" after he was married if he was "all right" when she married him.

"You say he was working and earning good money and had no bad habits when you married him?"

"Yes," replied the witness.

"Well, then what made him go wrong after you were married—a year after you were married you say?"

"He got to gambling."

The Himminger's were married in this city, December 1, 1902.

The grand jury convened Monday morning. At the time the jurors went into secret deliberation with Prosecuting Attorney Charles L. Justice only twelve witnesses had been subpoenaed, but it is understood that other witnesses will be summoned forthwith, as they are needed.

The grand jury is composed of the following:

Philip Ebert, Charles Rice and P. Kelly, First ward; Thomas Griffin, Samuel Reber and W. B. DeVeny, Second ward; D. M. Breen, Frank Ritzhaupt, Frank Mayer and Ray Simpson, Third ward; Claude D. Walters, J. Reed, Harry Vogel and Julius Butz, Fourth ward; W. H. Sprague Montgomery township, West.

The report of special Master Thomas Beer, in the suit of Henry Seiter against the Marion Manufacturing company and others, has been approved by Judge Daniel Babst, of the common pleas court.

The entry of approval is as follows: "Henry Seiter against the Marion Manufacturing company and others, ass ess stockholders. Report of special master commissioner examined. Report approved and confirmed, and to all other matters this cause is continued to the next term of court."

Special Master Beer, in his report, states that he attended in this city four different hearings for the purpose of taking testimony and hearing arguments of counsel and has given at least ten days in considering the case and preparing the report, which contains fifteen typewritten pages.

The report sets forth lists of the solvent and insolvent stockholders, the former representing 1,279 shares of capital stock. The company was incorporated under the laws of Ohio with a paid up capital stock of 1,770 shares of $100 each.

The special master says that none of the stockholder of the Marion Manufacturing company opposed the execution of a contract of sale, February 18, 1901, but that some actively and some by their silence approved and consented to it; that the Marion Manufacturing company of Ohio, by virtue of the contract, took possession of all the property of the Marion Manufacturing company, with debts and liabilities of the latter far in excess of $220,000, the amount stipulated in the contract, that some of the stockholders in the Marion Manufacturing company surrendered their certificates of stock to the Marion Manufacturing company of Ohio and received shares of stock in the new corporation, that officers of the old company presented their claims to the treasurer and bookkeeper of that corporation, and upon the certificate of those officers being turned over to the proper officer of the Marion Manufacturing Company of Ohio, a check for the amount was drawn payable to the order of the Marion Manufacturing company, the checks being paid to the creditors upon its endorsement.

The report further says that in the course of about three months after the agreement was entered into, the Marion Manufacturing Company of Ohio paid debts and liabilities of the old company to the extent of $220,000, leaving unpaid of debts and liabilities of the Marion Manufacturing company the claims of creditors who are now suing. Following the making of these payments, both corporations became insolvent, the Marion Manufacturing Company of Ohio being adjudged a bankrupt by the United States district court for the northern district of Ohio. Its assets are now being administered in that court. The claims of the defendants Charles D. Schaffner, John H. Lewis, trustee; W. S. Pahl, Charles Myers, J. S. Atwater, the Superior Implement company and J. H. Harpold, have been presented and allowed in the bankruptcy proceeding.

For lack of testimony, the master was unable to make any finding against the transferees of stock, if there be any such, to the stockholders who are insolvent. Mary A. Wolford should be assessed on twenty-five shares, he says. He regrets the meagerness of the evidence and the "total lack thereof in important particulars," and in conclusion finds:

"That neither the contract of 1901 nor the presentation of her claim by creditors in the bankruptcy proceeding, effected or amounted to a new contract, or worked an estoppel as against the creditors but that all dividends received by creditors in such bankruptcy proceeding should be credited upon their claims, and that they should receive that much less in this proceeding."

Judge Daniel Babst came to Marion from Crestline, Monday afternoon, and appointed Charles L. Justice receiver for the Marion Manufacturing company. Attorney Justice is ordered to proceed to collect the debts and accounts. His bond was fixed at $50,000, surety to be approved by the county clerk.

Judge Babst allowed Seefield, Durfee & Scofield, attorneys for the plaintiff, Henry Seiter, a sum equivalent to eight per cent of the amount collected by the receiver as compensation.

Judge Thomas Beer, of Bucyrus, who was appointed special master commissioner in this same action, was allowed $200. Leave to file supplemental petition, making the executors of Harvey Wilson, deceased, and the executor of Vashti Kishler, deceased, parties defendant, was given. Leave is also granted defendants Will H. Hunt, administrator, and others, to file supplemental answer by May 11. On good cause being shown, Henry A. True, executor of the estate of Henry True, deceased, is made a party defendant with leave to plead by May 11, and leave has been granted defendant Frederick Issleib to file an amended answer and cross-petition by the same date.

On motion of the defendants, the Farmers' Bank, of Waldo, and Fred Diebold, leave is granted these defendants to file amendments to their answers and cross-petitions, respectively, by May 10.

Through his attorney, Thomas A. Gruber, of Caledonia, Gottlieb F. Beck brought an action in the common pleas court, Tuesday, for a divorce from Margaret Corwin Beck. The Becks were married at Caledonia, March 1 1905 and have no children. He sets up that the defendant left him February 6, 1906, and has since refused to live with him.

The second amended petition of the plaintiff in the suit of George G. Morrison against the Marion Railway, Light & Power company was filed in the common pleas court, Tuesday, by Attorneys Mulholland & Hartman, of Toledo. Morrison, a traveling salesman, sues to recover $5,000 as a result of injuries received by an alleged assault made upon him by one of the defendant's conductors, Thomas Griffin.

The damage suit of Charles F. Koch against Philip Bauer and the divorce case of Grace Jones against Charles Jones have been dismissed at the costs of the plaintiff in both actions.

In the suit of Henry Cunningham against the City of Marion and others, Judge B. G. Young, Tuesday, made the temporary injunction perpetual. Judgment for costs is assessed against the defendants. The city is permanently enjoined by this action from interfering with plaintiff in the operation of a meat-market at the city market-house.

The plaintiff is ordered to secure costs by May 15 in the damage suit of Agnes M. Giesy against John Fehlmuth.

The suit of James N. Haner against John W. Clark has been dismissed at the costs of the plaintiff. This is an appeal case.

In the receivership matter of the Root Glass company against the Marion Preserving company, the appraisement has been approved by Judge B. G. Young. The receiver is authorized to sell the property in his hands at private sale.

A writ of habeas corpus in the matter of the application of John Knachel, who was fined $50 and costs in the mayor's court on a charge of bootlegging, was denied by Judge B. G. Young Tuesday. The application is dismissed and costs are assessed against Knachel.

The attachment suit of C. L. Keel against William Hopps and others has been settled out of court.

The suit of the Acme Food company against Thomas Lundergan, appeal, has been settled out of court, as has been the civil action of the state of Ohio on relation of and by John H. Clark, prosecuting attorney of Marion county, against the Bellefontaine Bridge & Iron company. The costs must be paid by the county in the latter case.

The following cases have been assigned by Judge B. G. Young for trial in the court of common pleas.

May 10—Frank G. Ulsh against Nypano Railroad company, Reynolds against Ressler Brothers, Good Roads Machine company against Brady.

May 11—Almendinger against the C. D. & M. Railway company, Osborn against Marion Steam Shovel company.

The damage suit of Alfred T. Tallman against H. D. Beaver and others has been ordered left on the docket, which means dismissal at the cost of the plaintiff.

HUNTSMAN HOME DAMAGED BY FIRE

Suit for Damages Against the City Is Threatened.

Fire of unknown origin did about $500 damage to the home of Fremont Huntsman, on north State street, about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The blaze started in the roof of the house and had gained much headway before it was discovered. An alarm was telephoned to the Central station and the department made a quick run. The residence being so far north on State street, a line of hose was laid from the last plug on Main street. By the time the department arrived all of the furniture had been taken from the house. Before the fire was extinguished the roof was consumed. The plastering of the rooms was badly damaged by water. Huntsman allowed his insurance to expire two weeks ago.

Huntsman contemplates bringing suit against the city to recover his loss, claiming that the fire originated from a spark from a fire some distance away where the clothing of the Thornton girl was being burned, the girl having died of consumption.

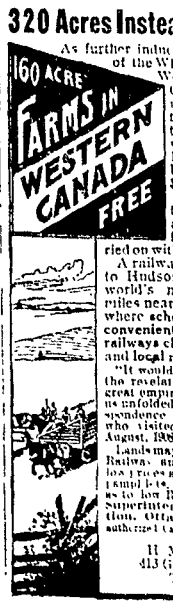
WESTERN CANADA

320 Acres Instead of 160 Acres



As further inducement to settlement of the Wheat-raising lands of Western Canada, the Canadian Government has increased the area that may be taken by a homesteader to 320 acres—160 free and 160 to be purchased at only $3.00 per acre.

These lands are in the grain-raising area, where mixed farming is also carried on with unqualified success.

A railway will shortly be built to Hudson Bay, bringing the world's markets a thousand miles nearer these wheat fields, where schools and churches are convenient, climate excellent, railways close to all settlements, and local markets good.

"It would take time to assimilate the revelations that a visit to the great empire lying to the North of us unfolded at every turn." Correspondence of an Illinois Editor, who visited Western Canada in August, 1908.

Lands may also be purchased from Railway and Land Companies at low prices and on easy terms. For pamphlets, maps and information as to low Railway Rates, apply to Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the authorized Canadian Government Agent.

THE GLAD REUNION OF OLD COMRADES TUESDAY

Meeting of J. Pinkney and Eber Gurley Occurs.

FOND EMBRACE AFTER MANY LONG YEARS

They Railroad Together in Years Gone—John Kelly, a Veteran Conductor, Dies at His Home in Cleveland—Is One of the Best-Known Workers on New York Central.

One of the most pathetic meetings that has ever been witnessed a the union station was that, Tuesday, of J. Pinkney of Collinwood, and Eber Gurley, "The grand old man of the Erie yards." Embracing each other like two long-separated lovers, the two old men patted each other on the back and tears of joy came to their eyes. They were old comrades twenty-five to fifty years ago, both running on the old Chicago & Atlantic. Tuesday, was their first meeting in nearly twenty-five years.

Mr. Pinkney is the father of one of the Newark ball players and came down from his home to see his son in action, he being an ardent fan, as well as the proud father of a promising player. As Mr. Pinkney alighted from the train he approached Officer Wilhelm and asked for direction to the Hotel Kumfort. He started away, but returned and asked whether or not Engineer Gurley was still working in the local yards. The officer replied in the affirmative and referred him to some railroad men who were standing near. He approached these men and inquired for his old comrade. Gurley's engine was just pulling out of the Pennsylvania "Y." Mr. Pinkney rushed to the track and called. Mr. Gurley came to the opposite side of the engine and looked out. Quicker than can be imagined the two men were in each others arms, and the hearts of all who witnessed the reunion were touched.

John Kelly, the old-time conductor in the employ of the New York Central lines in point of term of service, died suddenly, Monday night at his home in Cleveland. "Dad" as he was familiarly known passed through the city, last Thursday, on his regular run, which was between Cleveland and Bellefontaine. Conductor Kelly was probably one of the best known men on the system, and has been in the service of the same road for over forty-six years. He was about sixty-eight years of age.

Nearly a carload of oats leaked out of a Big Four boxcar Monday evening. The track from the west corporation limits to the Big Four freight-house is practically covered with the wasted grain. As the train passed Kenton avenue, Watchman Joseph Ryan noticed that the grain was rapidly pouring from the bottom of the car and he apprised a brakeman of the fact. The brakeman made examination and found the car. It was set off here.

Huber Products.

This month's issue of the American Contractor, one of the large trade journals of the country, has a lengthy story on the Huber combination roller and traction engine. The article is loud in its praise of the local product.

Teachers' Institute.

The joint county and city teachers' institute will be held in August. The county organization has selected James M. Coughlin, of Wilkesbarre, as instructor. The city instructor will be Dr. W. D. Henderson of Ann Arbor, Michigan. Mr. Henderson was in the city last week making arrangements for his part of the session.

CURRY IS ACQUITTED AT UPPER SANDUSKY

Jury Finds the Prisoner Is Not Guilty.

RETURNS VERDICT FRIDAY AFTERNOON

The Jurors Deliberate from 3 O'Clock Thursday Afternoon Until 2:20 O'Clock Friday Afternoon—Instructions Given by Judge Babst to Jury Followed Quickly by Report.

Upper Sandusky, O., April 30.—[Special.]—Hamilton R. Curry, the Erie Railroad company's detective, who shot and killed John W. C. Jackson, near Marion, November 30, last, was acquitted, this afternoon.

The jury went out to deliberate on the defendant's fate, Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This afternoon at 2 o'clock, after the jurors had passed a sleepless night and balloted unavailingly all morning, they appeared in the court-room for further instruction. Judge Daniel Babst ascended the bench. The foreman asked if Curry had a right to shoot the second time, and the court replied that if Curry was still in fear of Jackson after the first shot, under the law, he had the right to shoot a second time.

The jurors went back to their room and within ten minutes returned a verdict of acquittal. They had previously stood, it is said, eleven for acquittal and one for conviction.

As if fully expecting to be acquitted, Curry was dressed in a new suit of clothes and had everything in readiness to leave the jail for good when summoned to the court-room. He showed no emotion when the words of the foreman made known to him that he was a free man. He shook hands with all the jurors and thanked them.

Only a few persons were in the court-room aside from Curry's relatives and the court-house attaches. There was no demonstration.

Prosecuting Attorney Charles L. Justice made the closing argument. His speech was a very creditable one, delivered in a conversational tone. He made a vigorous defense of Mrs. Jackson and her daughter, Laura, who had been scathingly attacked by Attorney John Egan, who closed for the defense. Prosecutor Justice characterized the killing of Jackson as a cold-blooded deed.

Judge Babst occupied nearly an hour in delivering his charge to the jury. It filled thirty typewritten pages. The court's charge took up the different degrees of crime charged in the indictment. He gave a definition of self-defense and the rights and duties of officers in making arrests. Judge Babst declared that oral and parol evidence was competent to prove that Curry was an officer, and that if the jury found that Curry was acting in the discharge of his duties as an officer, he was not bound to retreat from Jackson, but that if he believed himself in danger of death or great bodily harm, he had a right to protect himself, even to the extent of taking Jackson's life if necessary.

LOUIS WILKERSON IS VICTIM OF ASSAULT

Has Arm Broken, but Escapes with His Life.

A United Press wire from Columbus says:

The instinct for self-preservation which caused Louis Wilkerson, Marion county murderer, to throw up his arm to protect his head, when Robert Evans, serving nine years for manslaughter in Cuyahoga county, murderously attacked him with an iron bar in Hatcher's foundry in the penitentiary Monday, probably saved Wilkerson's life. His arm was broken, but his head escaped with a four-inch scalp wound. He is now in the hospital, while his assailant was securely locked in his cell to await trial in the prison court.

Is Given Hearing.

John Steven was taken from the city prison to the office of Justice Charles E. Gompf by Officer Darius Bell, Monday afternoon, and arraigned on a paternity charge preferred by Rose Fosnaught. He pleaded not guilty, and will arrange to give bond.

TROOP TRAIN BEARING TURKISH INVADERS; PALACE GUARDS AND STAMBOUL REFUGEES

VOLUNTEERS EN ROUTE TO CONSTANTINOPLE

REFUGEES IN STAMBOUL

Since their occupation of the capital, the Young Turks have bent most of their energies toward reforming the army and getting rid of the conspirators who were responsible for the recent reactionary revolt. Scores of soldiers have admitted that they received large bribes from Abdul Hamid's confidants for their part in the tragedy. On the bodies of many of the members of the imperial guard who were killed in defending the palace sums of money—in some cases as much as a thousand dollars—were found. General Schefket Pasha, who is in command of the invading army, is determined to rid Constantinople of all the soldiers concerned in the uprising. A major of the palace guard, who confessed that he had received $6,500 to act with the conspirators, was court-martialed and sentenced to be shot. All the officers suspected of any part in the plot were placed under arrest, and the enlisted men under suspicion were ordered to other parts of the empire. This illustration shows how the volunteer army traveled to Constantinople, types of refugees outside the capital and a company of the imperial infantry.

WOMAN REGRETS HER ATTEMPTS AT SUICIDE

Bullet Removed and She Is Expected To Recover.

SHE LIES LONG TIME WITHOUT A SURGEON

No Assistance Rendered Her for One Hour and Forty Minutes—Mrs. William Massie Lies in Bed When She Fires Through Her Chest—She Makes Statement to Surgeon.

Eighteen-year-old Bertha Porter Massie, the three-months bride of William B. Massie, a one-legged stone quarryman, who shot herself with a thirty-two-caliber revolver in the right breast in a fit of jealous passion, Thursday of last week, will recover. The bullet struck the edge of the fourth rib and, deflecting, passed through the pleura of the lung. It lodged in the region of the spinal column, where it was removed by Dr. A. Rhu one hour and forty minutes after the young woman had fired the shot with suicidal intent.

From 2:30 until 4:10 o'clock Mrs. Massie lay at her home on Cottage street in a supposedly dying condition, while relatives made frantic efforts to obtain a doctor by telephone. Dr. F. B. Sawyer was called, but did not respond because he understood that Dr. H. W. Sager had been summoned. Dr. Sager says he did not go, because he had been called to attend a very sick babe. At 4 o'clock Dr. J. B. Taylor was located by telephone by his daughter at the home of a patient and informed of the young woman's attempt at suicide. He drove rapidly to the Massie home, but before his arrival Dr. Rhu had been taken there in an automobile by Colonel George B. Christian and his son, George B. Christian, Jr.

When told at 4 o'clock that relatives were unable to get a doctor, Colonel Christian ordered his machine and sped to the office of Dr. Rhu, who entered the car and was hurried to the suffering woman's side. Colonel Christian was pressed into service as assistant surgeon, and administered the anesthetic, while Dr. Rhu probed for the bullet.

Mrs. Massie had lain on her back in bed when she shot, placing the revolver against her right breast. The flesh was badly powder-burned.

"If you wanted to kill yourself, why didn't you shoot on the left side and strike the heart?" asked Dr. Rhu when the would-be suicide had recovered consciousness. The bride smiled faintly. "I never thought about that," she said, "but I am sorry that I did it now."

The young husband, through jealousy of whom the woman sought to die apparently was deeply affected by his wife's condition. One afternoon, last week, he quit his work at the quarries of the Ohio & Western company. His wife says he spent the afternoon in the society of a Findlay girl. Wednesday evening, Mrs. Massie and the girl met. They had a fight. Then husband and wife quarreled—their first, it is said. Thursday morning, when Massie went to his work they quarreled again, and there was no parting kiss. At noon, Mrs. Massie carried her husband's dinner to him. At that time she took with her the revolver, which she later used upon herself. This she acknowledged after the bullet had been removed. Suspecting the bride had planned to kill her husband and then herself, Dr. Rhu asked:

"Why didn't you kill him?" But the young woman only smiled again and replied, "I am sorry."

Doctor Gets Colt.

A short time ago Dr. A. Rhu brought an action in replevin in the court of Justice Charles H. Conley to recover a colt from Albert Irey, a farmer. Dr. Rhu claimed that he had given Irey a mare, which had suffered a broken leg, with the understanding that, if the mare recovered, he was to have the first colt when it became a year old. Irey claimed that there was no such an understanding. A trial was held two weeks ago. Friday, Justice Conley decided that the colt belonged to the doctor.

He Says Principle of Commodities Clause Is Saved

HE INTERPRETS COURT'S DECISION

Calls Attention to the Power of Congress

It Is Able To So Amend Act as To Extend Transportation to Commodities Mined or Manufactured by a Company in Which the Railroad Is a Stock Owner—Goulds Take Quick Advantage of the Decision

Washington May 4—Claiming that the principle contended for by the government had been sustained by the supreme court of the United States in its opinion rendered in the commodities clause case Attorney General Wickersham authorized the following statement interpreting the decision as he understands it

Mr Justice Whites statement in announcing the opinion of the supreme court in the commodities clause cases is in effect that a proper construction of the so called commodities clause is that it prohibit the transportation by railway companies only of commodities owned in whole or in part by such companies at the time of transportation and that it does not prohibit them from transporting commodities manufactured mined or produced by them previous to such transportation which are not owned by them at the time of transportation and further that it does not apply to transportation of commodities owned by other corporations in which the transporting railroad company has a stock interest although congress has the power to extend the prohibition to the last mentioned clause if it shall see fit to exercise it.

The recognition of the power in congress to extend transportation to commodities mined manufactured or produced by a company in which the carrier is a stock owner makes it possible for congress to prevent in evasion of the general prohibition of the statute which might otherwise be resorted to In other words as I understand the opinion it is to the effect that the question of whether or not a carrier is prohibited from transporting goods which it has produced or owned depends upon whether it owns or has an interest in them at the time of transportation If it has then the commodities clause prohibits the carrier from so transporting although it that ownership is only the indirect interest resulting from owning capital stock of a corporation which owns the goods that fact does not operate to prevent it from transporting

Principle All Right

Washington May 4 — It has been many a day since a decision of the supreme court of the United States has been received with so much interest as was manifested in the decision of that court in what is known as the commodities clause cases affecting the interstate coal carrying railroad The cases had been decided by the United States circuit court for the east in district of Pennsylvania favorably to the railroads in that the clause of the Hepburn rate law which prohibit interstate railroads from carrying commodities manufactured mined or produced directly or indirectly by the roads was declared unconstitutional and the general impression held in that the decision would be affirmed by the supreme court When therefore there was a reversal instead of an affirmation the interest was much magnified

Summed up the act only compels companies to dissociate themselves from the products they carry with the contention of the government that the law applies to the ownership of coal and prohibit the transportation of commodities simply because they have been produced by a railroad company regardless of the fact that the company has parted with them as untenable and incapable of enforcement

The effect of the decision under existing conditions is favorable to the railroads and the government by practically all parties except in the contentation of the principle involved

Get into the Game

Pittsburg May 4 — The after the news of the decision in regard to the commodities clause was received a deal was consummated that the Gould interests will make an coal business in the East in future

Arrangements have been already it is said to put down 2 000 000 and 3 000 000 tons a year The mines will be operated by the Pittsburg Terminal and Coal company and the coal will be sold at the mines through a New York concern

Three submarines of the newest type and modern in every particular have just been launched at Quincy, Massachusetts, and will have their speed trials during the next month. All the new vessels are built for speed. Naval experts are deeply interested in them, and it is believed that submarine speed records will be shattered when the trials are made. The largest of the trio is the Narwhal, which, in fact, is the largest submarine vessel ever launched. She is 135 feet in length and resembles a giant swordfish, so graceful are her lines. She will carry a larger crew than any of the other submarines. This photograph is a snapshot of the launching of the vessel.

LATEST PORTRAIT OF MRS. LONGWORTH; HER COTTAGE NEAR TAFT SUMMER HOME

Representative Nicholas Longworth and Mrs. Longworth will be neighbors of President and Mrs. Taft this summer and will go to their summer home at Beverly, Massachusetts, early in the season. The cottage, which is a modern ten-room house on the seashore and only a short distance from the Taft cottage, is now being placed in readiness for Mr. and Mrs. Longworth. The condition of Mrs. Longworth's health would not permit her to accompany her husband when he went to Cincinnati last week to visit his relatives, and he has decided to take her to the seashore as soon as the cottage has undergone the necessary repairs. Mrs. Longworth probably will be visited by Mrs. Roosevelt during the early summer.

IS BOLDLY KIDNAPED AND BROUGHT TO OHIO

Story of the Landing of Charles H. Hole in Marion Jail.

A WILD AUTO DASH WITH THE PRISONER

Sheriff Stark Takes the Law in His Own Hands and Takes Hole Out of the State by Force—Hole Beats an Attorney in the Fight Incidental to the Kidnaping—In Jail.

Boldly kidnaped from the state of Washington, Charles H. Hole, wanted in Marion for the alleged embezzlement of $1,000 from the Wells Fargo & Company express, was brought here by Sheriff John G. Stark, Monday evening at 6:12 o'clock, and lodged safely in jail.

Hole's extradition was accomplished after a series of exciting incidents.

When Sheriff Stark arrived in Seattle, where Hole had been arrested several weeks ago, he found the absconding transfer clerk enjoying his freedom, having been released on $2,500 bond, pending the final hearing of a proceeding in habeas corpus brought by Hole's attorneys. At the hearing held in the superior court of Seattle, Hole was ordered turned over to the custody of Sheriff Stark. Governor Hay, of Washington, had already honored the requisition papers.

Hole's attorneys then carried his case up on appeal to the supreme court, where it might possibly hang until next September. Sheriff Stark was in a quandary. He could not afford to remain in Seattle until the supreme court acted nor did he like the idea of returning to Marion without his prisoner. He consulted the prosecuting attorney at Seattle.

"If you get Hole out of the state, he is yours," said the prosecutor.

"Well, he is mine, then," replied the plucky Marion county official.

Plans were laid at this conference to kidnap Hole, who had been living under the assumed name of Lowe and who, three weeks ago last Saturday, was married to a Seattle girl of poor, but highly respectable family.

Hole was employed as a solicitor in a wholesale commission house. As he was returning to his bride after his day's work, a little over a week ago, he was seized by a number of officers employed by Sheriff Stark as he was about to enter his home. Hole, a powerful man, put up a desperate battle, and severely beat Deputy Peyton, of the prosecuting attorney's office. He was finally overpowered, just as a young man with an automobile was passing. The officers hailed the autoist, and hustled their prisoner into the tonneau. Several of Hole's friends had come to his aid, and they threatened to have the chauffeur arrested if he drove the machine away.

Sheriff Stark displayed his badge, and the driver whizzed the party to an uptown garage, where a high-speed machine was secured. Then began a wild drive across country over unknown road, to Auburn, a distance of forty-five miles, where the sheriff hoped to catch a train and get out of the state with his prisoner.

It was dark when the start was made. Five men were in the machine beside the handcuffed prisoner. The ride was a wild one. The man who held the wheel had never before driven over the road, but he lost no time through fear of accident. The great machine dashed through the darkness. "Every minute I expected to be killed," said Sheriff Stark, in relating the adventure today.

When the party reached Auburn, the train had gone. Then began another dash of sixteen miles to a little station called Puyallup. The train pulled in just as the big automobile nosed its way up to the station platform. It was 11 o'clock at night. Early the next morning, Sheriff Stark arrived in Portland, Oregon, with his prisoner.

In the meantime, Hole's attorneys had secured another high-power automobile and started on a different route to catch the same train. They, too, had papers and the seal of the supreme court was upon them. One of the tires of their machine bursted, and they failed to make the train. Had they reached Stark with his prisoner in the state of Washington, the Marion county officer would have had to surrender Hole.

From Portland, Sheriff Stark and a deputy sheriff from Seattle came by the most direct route to Chicago. From Chicago Sheriff Stark came to Marion alone with his prisoner. Hole showed no disposition to be ugly after his capture at Seattle. He said he had been warned by his attorneys that an attempt might be made to kidnap him and that they told him to resist with all his power.

Immediately upon his arrival here, Hole sent a telegram to his bride.

Sheriff Stark says Hole had many friends in Seattle, who used their influence in his behalf. Holes, whereabouts were betrayed by a former Marion man, who will receive a reward of $100.

Francis Montgomery most creditably delivered his oration Self Made If Ever Made He said This is the era of the self made man His praises have been sung far and wide and his life and example has been the subject of many a discourse Success is made not found If we find ourselves unable to discover the way to those unseen fortune let us make one

Miss Verne Bilger was the next speaker and in a very pleasing manner gave her oration Women of History Miss Bilger said In all time woman has had much to do with shaping the destinies of men She spoke of the reign of different queens of the noble work of Frances E Willard and the most illustrious of lady writers Continuing she said When the civil war shall have passed into ancient history when the deeds of Washington Lincoln and Grant shall have been forgotten the name of Louisa May Alcott will still be heard from the lips of every American child

This was followed by another selection of music by the orchestra

Another oration famous Concerts was most ably handled by Earl Drake Mr Drake subject dwelt chiefly with the generals of ancient history Julius Caesar one of the greatest figures of time was the founder of Romes imperial greatness Within sixty days Caesar made himself master of all Italy Among his peaceful deeds may be mentioned the rebuilding of Carthage Among his greatest the saving of Rome the Eternal City We cannot all be come famous men but we can work to a higher standard in life

Mayo embodys carefully and thoroughly treated the subject Ohio He said We feel our privilege to boast of the fact that Ohio produced an Edison a Harrison a Hayes a Garfield and a McKinley We may not be wrong if we say that McKinley was the greatest man Ohio has produced With pride we point the fact that in Ohio boy love worships the presidents chair during the affairs of the nation When Taft's term has ended Uncle Sam has but to come to Ohio to find another to fill his place

The orchestra then played another selection of music

Miss Belle Montgomery in a particularly clear voice discussed the subject Alexander Hamilton She said Alexander Hamilton is one of the fixed stars which will forever blaze in the firmament of American light of Washington Jefferson and Lincoln He was the only man whom Webster considered his superior as a statesman But he could not escape the vengeance of Burr so he had to fall that fatal duel in obedience to that code of honor which has found victims since the feudal ages Alexander Hamilton lives in the nations heart and it cannot forget his matchless services

Earl Withrow was the last speaker of the evening He delivered his oration in a most forceful and interesting manner Mr Withrow said Nations like men have their mission In the churches of the world to-day vast hymns and anthems that have been inspired mind and to uplift humanity and have been a potent factor in the spread of the Christian faith That kind of all divine the Bible with its history and relation with its psalms and proverbs with hymns and parables is a power beyond all understanding an ever growing influence that will not only with time

I W Stoll of Marion the superintendent of the schools of this place, delivered the class address Mr Stolls address was beautifully composed and splendidly delivered He very appropriately admonished the class to seek higher ideals but commended them for having already attained the goal for which they have so faithfully striven The encouraging words were opportune and will no doubt serve as a stimulus to greater achievement

Rev J C Sinclair presented the members of the class their diplomas in a manner pleasing to his hearers He then pronounced the benediction with an appeal to God that He let choicest blessings come to the class of 1909

SOUNDS LOUD WARNING NOTE

Senator Borah Tells His Fellow Republicans

TO FOLLOW THE ROOSEVELT LEAD

Warns Party Against Discarding His Policies.

Says That Without Roosevelt's Fearless Leadership the Republican Party Would Have Gone Out of Business—Appeals for Tax on Large Fortunes and Quotes President Taft's Campaign Statement.

Washington, May 4.—Senator Borah of Idaho, during his speech on the income tax, referred to Former President Theodore Roosevelt as having shaped the destinies of the Republican party, and said that without his leadership "his party would have gone out of business." He added that "without continued adherence to these principles, the party will go out of power."

"No man," he added, "is politically so shortsighted or politically so blind as the man who thinks the steamer Hamburg carried away the policies, the principles, the public interest, the aroused public conscience and the searching public concern which this remarkable man bequeathed to his countrymen."

The statement was in connection with Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion in favor of a graduated inheritance and graduated income tax.

Mr. Borah also quoted Mr. Taft's speech in which he spoke in favor of the principle of the income tax.

"Does the senator believe," Mr. Sutherland asked, "that President Taft believed in the constitutionality of the income tax law—in other words, that he believed the law pronounced unconstitutional by the supreme court was in fact constitutional?"

"I only know what he said to the American people when he was a candidate for the presidency," responded Mr. Borah; "that he was in favor of an income tax which could be drawn to be made constitutional. I am not willing to believe the president believed in drawing an income tax law applicable to men toiling in professions and then in exempting the vast accumulated wealth of this nation from taxation."

Mr. Borah advocated an income tax as a means of wiping out the treasury deficit as well as awakening public interest in national expenditures, saying it was no more inquisitorial than the present system of national taxation.

Referring to Mr. Carnegie's statement that an income tax would encourage perjury, Mr. Borah said: "Mr. Carnegie did not make the Republican party, and I wish I was just as sure that the Republican party did not make Mr. Carnegie."

NOTED MATTER UP FOR TRIAL

Compton Suit Against the Wabash in Thirtieth Year.

Cincinnati, O., May 6. The case of Ellen L. Compton, executrix of James Compton, against the Wabash Railroad company, which comes up today in the United States circuit court of appeals, was originally brought 30 years ago, and has been fought back and forth from the highest to the lowest courts several times.

The plaintiff seeks to secure about $1,000,000. James Compton, the original plaintiff, has long since died. He was a heavy holder of unpaid bonds and the suit is one in equity in which the plaintiff asks that all property of the Wabash railroad in Ohio be sold in order to pay off this ancient bond issue. In the original case Compton secured a decree, but the defendants took the case to the United States supreme court on a plea that the railroad had been working under a federal receivership for the entire system and that no part of it could be sold. Compton, however, won, but the defendant company continued to fight.

Accompanied by their sister, Katherine, the brothers left London at 9:28 this morning for Southampton.

A soft answer may start good luck your way.

NEWARK SUFFERS HEAVY FIRE LOSS

Wehrle Stove Works Burned with a Loss of $300,000.

Newark, O., May 6.—Three hundred thousand dollars' loss, 1,800 men out of work, two immence buildings of the Wehrle Stove company, considered the largest in the world, destroyed, and two men so badly injured that their recovery is doubtful, is the result of a spectacular fire which raged here last night from 11:20 o'clock until daylight, and for a time threatened the entire works covering twenty-two acres.

The wind was high, and burning embers were blown across the city, a house one and a half miles away catching fire.

John Protherow and Stewart Caffey, members of the Wehrle volunteer fire department, were caught beneath a falling wall which was sent down by a gasoline explosion. Caffey's left thigh is broken, and he also suffered internal injuries. Protherow's right leg is broken, and his lower limbs were badly burned by hot bricks. He is also internally injured.

The fire is thought to have resulted from defective insulation. It started in the rattling room, and totally destroyed the building which measures 110 by 600 feet.

From this building the flames spread to a second, 210 by 1,000 feet.

It will be a year, company officials think, before the plant will be in full operation again.

MRS. STRINGER IS ACQUITTED BY JURY

Insanity Plea Proves Effective in a Blackmailing Case.

Washington, Ind., May 6.—Mrs Zella Stringer, charged with attempting to blackmail President Nathan H. Read, of the Washington National bank out of $30,000, has been acquitted by a jury under her defense of insanity. Read received a letter demanding that $30,000 be put in a specified spot under penalty of having his home and bank dynamited. A dummy package was left at the place indicated and when Mrs. Stringer went to get it, she was shot by officers who were in hiding. Before the close of her trial a lunacy commission was appointed, which found her insane at the time of the commission of the crime and ordered her to the asylum at Evansville. The woman, however, is believed to have had confederates, and arrests are expected shortly.

PLANS AERIAL TRIP TO POLE

Wellman Secures Backing for a Second Attempt.

HE WILL START DURING AUGUST

Patriotic Americans Will Put Up Necessary Cash.

Will Enable Noted Journalist To Carry Out His Dream of a Balloon Voyage Over Arctic Waters. Chicago Record-Herald Donates Equipment Used in Previous Attempt—Station on Danes Island.

Washington, May 5.—His determination to renew his effort to reach the north pole by means of a dirigible balloon or airship was announced here by Walter Wellman.

All the preparations for the journey have been made and Mr. Wellman will sail next week for Paris and Norway. This expedition will be under Mr. Wellman's individual ownership and responsibility. The capital has been supplied by Americans who are interested in the enterprise solely on scientific and patriotic grounds.

No change has been made in the general plan of the expedition, which is to assemble and inflate the airship at the headquarters station, Danes island, Spitzbergen, in June and July, and to start thence northward through the air in August, provided the weather conditions make a start practicable with reasonable chance for success. The airship to be used is the America, which had a trial in a voyage of about 20 miles at Spitzbergen a year ago last September.

The owners of the Chicago Record-Herald have turned over to Mr. Wellman, free of charge, the airship plant, buildings and machinery of Mr. Wellman's former enterprise. The America, which is the second largest airship yet built, about three-fifths the size of the Zeppelin and twice as large as the largest French ships, and with a lifting capacity of nearly 10 tons, has been reconstructed and improved in the expedition workshops at Paris.

If the America is able to start next August upon her long voyage of 700 miles through the air to the pole she will carry a crew of three men, 6,000 pounds of gasoline for the engines, food for a year, sledge, sledge dogs lifeboat, and all the requisites of a sledging party should it be necessary to resort to sledging. Engineer Vaniman, who was in charge of the ship's engines during her trial voyage in 1907, will be one of the crew.

South Pole Expedition.

Edinburgh, May 5.—Dr. William Bruce, of the Scottish Oceanographical laboratory, is today deeply engrossed in preparations for an attempt to out-do Lieutenant Shackleton as an Antarctic explorer.

Instead of approaching the pole from its nearest side open to navigation and then returning to his base, Dr. Bruce proposes to land at a point where the coast of the supposed Antarctic continent is farthest from the pole, to cross right over the continent and to rejoin his vessel on the other side. He is already negotiating for a ship of from 250 to 300 tons. His party of six scientists and crew of thirty are nearly all chosen. The cost of the expedition is estimated at $250,000, which friends of Dr. Bruce have guaranteed.

"I believe," said Dr. Bruce, "there is an Antarctic continent twice the size of Australia; that the great mass of it lies on the Atlantic side; that three great ice fields face the Pacific, Indian and Atlantic oceans respectively, that the Pacific is the narrowest and steepest field, that the Atlantic is the broadest and most gently sloping, and that the south pole is situated on the Atlantic ice sheet, on the Pacific side of which Shackleton traveled.

"If I am right, though the distance from the Atlantic coast line to the pole is 300 miles greater than from the Pacific, the road will be less difficult, the route resembling one across America from east to west."

FLOUR GOES UP $1.75 IN A YEAR

Now at Highest Since Since Spanish-American War.

Cleveland, May 5. Flour advanced twenty-five cents a barrel for all grades in the retail markets today, to the highest prices since the Spanish-American war eleven years ago.

The Standard flour, known as winter wheat flour, is now seven dollars a barrel. A year ago this grade was $5.25.

Master bakers are opposed to an advance in the price of bread, even though most of their profits are wiped out by the high flour prices. There organization is working to secure legislation to prohibit trading in grain futures.

R. S. M'CORMICK, EX-DIPLOMAT, IS REPORTED TO BE IN A SANITARIUM

He is a native of Virginia and a member of the McCormick family of Chicago, famous as the harvester kings. He is sixty years of age. During the Russian-Japanese war he was this country's representative at St. Petersburg, and following his severe criticism of American sympathy for the Japanese he was transferred to Paris. Mr. McCormick possesses a large fortune.

OFFICER TAKES MAN FROM MOB

Woman Is Attacked While Walking on Railroad.

HER ASSAILANT IS QUICKLY CAPTURED

Gives His Name to Police as Charles Morris.

Tells Dayton Officers He Sees Woman Trip and Fall and Goes to Her Assistance — Husband of the Woman Makes an Attempt To Shoot Him, but Is Prevented by a Boy.

Dayton, O., May 5. Charles E. Morris is the name of the man who was captured by a mob after an exciting chase across country for an alleged attack upon Mrs. Frank Hennessy.

Mrs. Hennessy, who is 22 years old, was on the way from her home on Wolf Creek pike, a mile and a half above the city, to board a car for Dayton. While walking on the Cincinnati Hamilton & Dayton railroad right of way she passed the man and hearing a noise as of scuffling became frightened, tripped and fell.

Men and boys in the neighborhood hearing the woman's screams, hurried to the spot and Morris betook himself across fields and fences, but was captured.

It is said that after the capture of Morris the husband of the woman attempted to shoot him, but was prevented from doing so by John Montgomery, a 16-year-old boy.

Deputy Sheriff Lee took Morris from his captors and brought him to Dayton and placed him in jail. He denies having any intentions other than to help the woman he says he saw fall. Becoming alarmed at the crowd running towards him, he fled.

THE ROADWAY IS INUNDATED

Subterranean Lake in Indiana Seeks Light of Day.

Silver Lake, Ind., May 5. At a point three miles southeast of this city, on the line between Kosciusko and Wabash counties, a subterranean lake has burst its confines and has submerged the highway to a depth of 20 feet and for a distance of more than 100 yards. The new born lake is alive with eyeless fish.

Leaders are born—and likewise also the followers.

DEATH OF COLAN MAY BE SOLVED

By Certificate of Deposit on Van Wert Bank,

WHICH TURNS UP FOR COLLECTION

Through a Distillery in State of Kentucky.

Colan Leaves Van Wert Carrying $300 in Cash and $900 in a Certificate of Deposit—Last Heard from April 14—Body of a Supposed Printer in St. Louis Morgue Is Believed That of Colan.

Van Wert, O., May 5.—A certificate of deposit, returned to Van Wert for collection, may lead to a solution of the mysterious death of George Colan, fifty-six, of this city. Colan's body is now at the St. Louis city morgue.

Colan left Van Wert, April 13 to visit relatives in Sanna, Texas. A telegram from him, received here April 14, stated that he had arrived in St. Louis and stopped over there. He was never heard from in life again.

The body of a man supposed to be George Colan, a printer, was taken to the morgue in St. Louis on April 18 and has been there since. It is now stated this body is that of Colan.

When Colan left Van Wert, he had $300 cash and a certificate of deposit for $900 on the People's bank of Van Wert. No money or certificate was found on the body in St. Louis. On Tuesday, the People's bank received the certificate of deposit for collection from the Bernheim distillery, Louisville, Kentucky. Accompanying it was a statement written by Charles McWain, St. Louis saloonist, to H. Stemfeld, salesman for the Bernheim people. It said:

"I enclose signed certificate which I want you to collect as I do not do business with the bank. I have sold a half interest in my saloon to Mr. Colan."

Bank authorities here are awaiting report from St. Louis.

YANKEE CREW IS IMPRISONED

Sensational Story Told by Sailor Who Escapes.

MISSING WHALER IS NOT WRECKED

Is Seized in a Port Down in Venezuela.

Refugee Lands at Kingston and Tells Authorities That, Making Port During a Storm, Five Years Ago, Captain and Crew Are Seized by Authorities and Placed in Prison Where They Yet Remain.

Kingstown, St. Vincent, B. W. I., May 6.—An American seaman who gives the name of Payne and claims to have recently escaped from a Venezuela prison, has reached this port, where he laid before the authorities an astounding story of the seizure of the Carrie D. Knowles at a Venezuelan port, where she arrived five years ago in distress, and the incarceration by the Venezuelans of the captain and his men.

So convinced are the authorities here that there is truth in Payne's story that they have already taken steps looking to a speedy and thorough investigation of the case.

On Jan. 27, 1904, the Carrie D. Knowles sailed from Provincetown, Mass., on a whaling voyage. Her captain was Collin Stephenson and her first mate H. A. Martin. In addition she carried a crew of about a dozen men. These are the names as given by Payne to the authorities here and as far as he could remember the names of the members of the crew: Wallace, Warner, Robertson, Hazell, Sam, Davis, Pierre Grant, Lewis and John. Payne asserts positively that all of these men are at the present time confined in a Venezuelan prison.

Thought Vessel Lost.

The vessel was supposed to have been lost in a West Indian storm with all hands. Some of the men belonged in St. Vincent, and after all hope was given up of their return their relatives put on mourning and the local insurance company eventually paid the claims against it, on the assumption that the sailors were dead.

The story Payne told to the police caused great excitement, not only because of the seriousness of the charges against the Venezuelan authorities, but because it added another to the many tales which have reached St. Vincent concerning the high-handed methods adopted by the Venezuelans under the administration of Castro. Payne declared that the whaler had been disabled in a storm off the Venezuelan coast and had made port in distress. She was at once seized and the captain and crew were made prisoners and thrown into jail. He states that all the men are alive, but are still closely confined.

Payne Not Identified.

Provincetown, Mass., May 6.—The dispatch from Kingstown outlining the story told by an escaped Venezuelan prisoner, to the effect that the crew of the lost Provincetown whaler Carrie D. Knowles were incarcerated in a prison in Venezuela, was naturally of intense interest here. As the entire crew of the Knowles were natives of the West Indies there are few means here of verifying Payne's statements. The identity of Payne is not clear, but it may be that he is no other than Elisha Payne, a seaman of Provincetown, who disappeared from this port previous to or about the time of sailing of the Knowles. So far as known here, Payne was not a member of the crew when it sailed.

SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY

Sextet of Pittsburgers Convicted of Corruption,

MUST DO TIME FOR THE STATE

Fines Are Imposed in Each of the Six Cases.

A Common Councilman, a Councilman, a Former Bank President, a Hotel-Keeper and Two Would-Be "Jury Fixers" Get What Is Coming to Them This Morning—Sentences Imposed by Judge Fraser.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 5.—Judge Robert Fraser today imposed sentence in six cases growing out of alleged corruption of city councilmen by bribery in securing bank deposits of the city funds.

Common Councilman John F. Klein was sentenced to serve three years and six months in the Western penitentiary and to pay a fine of $1,500. Klein was convicted of conspiracy and soliciting and accepting bribes.

Councilman William Brand, convicted of accepting bribes, was sentenced to two years and fined $500.

W. W. Ramsey, former president of the German National bank, convicted of conspiracy, was sentenced to eighteen months and fined $1,000.

Hotel-keeper Harry M. Bolger, found guilty of conspiracy was given two years and fined $500.

James and Charles Colbert, convicted of attempted "jury fixing" in the councilmanic trials, were sentenced to two years and fined $500 each.

This disposed of all the boodling cases excepting those of A. A. Vilsack, former cashier of the German National bank, convicted of bribery, and Councilman J. C. Wasson, found guilty of soliciting and accepting bribes.

These cases probably will be disposed of this afternoon.

Other Sentences.

Councilman J. C. Wasson, convicted of accepting and soliciting bribes, was later sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and to serve a term of one year and six months in the penitentiary. A. A. Vilsack, former bank cashier, will not be called for sentence until some time next week.

Counsel for the convicted men immediately asked for supersedeas in all the cases except that of the Colbert brothers. Pending the decision of the superior court on the application for writs, the men will be admitted to bail.

FALL TO POVERTY; THEN TO DISGRACE

And Young Man and Woman Take Poisoned Whisky.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 5.—Two lives which had fallen to poverty and from poverty to disgrace were ended during the night when Arthur Stitt, twenty-five, who came of good parentage, killed Lesta Stroud, twenty-three, whose life had caused her to change her name to Mable Graff. Stitt killed the girl by placing carbolic acid in whisky. She drank the liquor and Stitt then ended his own life with the same drug. The two bodies were found in a buggy, still warm, but hanging over the edge of the seat. The horse had stopped under the glare of an electric light at Twenty-First and Central and passersby were attracted by the unusual position of the occupants of the rig.

New Martinsville, W. Va., May 5.—A sensation has been created here by Judge Willis, who has instructed the grand jury to render indictments against all church societies of this city obtaining money by raffles. BANQUET BRINGS MEETING TO END

General Grant Speaks in Behalf of the Army.

SAYS SOLDIER IS LOVER OF PEACE

Cease Struggle for Supremacy in Armament.

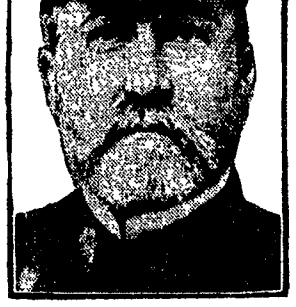
That's the Pith of Resolution Addressed to the Nations of the Earth Passed by the Second Peace Conference—Compulsory Arbitration To Settle International Disputes Is Strongly Urged.

Chicago, May 6. — At the closing session of the second national peace congress here, General Frederick D. Grant, commander of the department of the lakes, declared that "a good navy and a good army can do more to bring about peace than all the speeches of well-fed delegates. The soldier is the peace lover. We love peace so much that when we are in trouble we fight to bring it about.

"If nations are prepared to defend themselves and stand firmly," he said, "and a war is going to cost more than it is going to return, I think the patriotism of the people and the good judgment of the statesmen will prevent war."

General Grant appeared unexpectedly at the Chicago Association of Commerce banquet, which wound up the three days' gathering of peace envoys.

The day was notable for three features—the smothering of resolutions introduced by a Socialist and somewhat tinged with the sentiments of that party; the addresses of the official representatives of seven nations, and the adoption of appropriate resolutions. Ambassador Count von Bernstorff of Germany and Minister Wu Ting Fang appeared for their respective countries, and illness in his family prevented the presence of Herman de Lagercranz, the Swedish minister. Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, represented the United States. Others of the international representation were Alfred Mitchell Innes, counsellor of the British embassy; K. Matsubara, Japanese consul at Chicago, and Dr. Halvdan Koht of the University of Norway.



GENERAL GRANT.

Declares That Soldier Is Essentially a Man of Peace.

The activities of the day were led by Ambassador Von Bernstorff and Congressman Bartholdt. The diplomat spoke not only at the peace conference and the banquet, but at a luncheon given in his honor by the Industrial club of Chicago.

Resolutions Adopted.

The congress adopted the report of the committee on resolutions, which submitted the following:

"Resolved, That no dispute between nations, except as such as may involve the national life and independence, should be reserved from arbitration, and that a general treaty of obligatory arbitration should be included at the earliest possible date. Pending such a general treaty, we urge upon our government and the other leading powers such broadening of the scope of their arbitration treaties as shall provide for the reference to The Hague court of all differences whatever.

"Resolved, That the prevailing rivalry in armaments, both on land and sea, which imposes such exhausting burdens of taxation on the people, and is the fruitful source of suspicion, bitter feeling and war alarms, is wholly unworthy of enlightened modern nations, is a lamentable failure as a basis of enduring peace, and ought to be arrested by agreement of the powers without delay.

"Resolved, That this congress, representing all sections of our great country, appeals to our churches, schools and press, our workingmen's and commercial organizations, and to all men of good will, for increased devotion to this commanding cause and such large support of its active agencies as shall strongly advance the great measures which are to come before the next Hague conference, and shall maintain our nation in high and influential leadership in behalf of international justice and order."

GIRL VICTIMS OF DAYTON MURDER FIEND; MAN ACCUSED OF CRIMES AND HIS HOME

Dayton, O., May 5.—Elmer Carr, whose name has been connected with the murders of Elizabeth Fulhart and Mary Forschner, was released from custody Tuesday on account of lack of prosecution. He was charged with assault and battery upon Mrs Carrie Middlestetter, whose stories led to the belief that Carr had murdered the Fulhart girl in the Middlestetter rooming-house. State fire marshals probably will not arrest Carr on an arson charge

Mrs. Middlestetter is their chief witness, and she has admitted that her stories were untrue.

Pleads Not Guilty.

Fuller Johnson, of Prospect, charged with a nameless crime by his fifteen-year-old daughter, Ruth, was arraigned before Justice Charles E. Gompf, Thursday. He pleaded not guilty and his preliminary trial was set for May 20. Justice Gompf fixed his bond at $5,000. Johnson was unable to furnish this amount and was remanded to jail.

PRESIDENT'S VIEW OF INCOME TAX LAW

Will Favor It Only as an Extreme Measure.

MAKES ATTITUDE PLAIN TO PEOPLE

Every Other Avenue of Revenue Must Fail Before the Taxing of Incomes Will Be Regarded with Favor—Views of the President as to Present Tariff Schedule.

Washington, May 6.—Only as a last expedient will President Taft favor enactment of an income tax law. Despite the favorable attitude in which he has been described as regarding this form of increasing revenues, the chief executive has at last made it plain that he would only favor it in case every other revenue producing project failed.

Within the last twenty-four hours President Taft took occasion to define his position to a party of callers, and instead of asserting that he believed the income tax should be enacted at once, he went into detail to show that he was far from favoring an immediate enactment of such a statute.

In the first place, the president said, he was in favor of enacting the tariff bill substantially as it now stands, and giving it a thorough trial. If it did not yield enough money to change the deficit into a surplus he said he was in favor of passing a graduated inheritance tax law, and if the revenue gained in this manner was found to still be short of the country's needs, he advocated the passage of a law taxing dividends of corporations. If, after all these expedients had been tried, and found inadequate, he would then resort to the income tax.

Mrs. William Weidamier returned to her home in Marion, Wednesday, after a pleasant visit at the home of her father, Eli Winters, northwest of town.

The village school was closed, Friday afternoon, after the usual term of eight months. Quite a nice program was rendered by the scholars. The school which has been under the management of Misses Elizabeth Williams and Dayse Merkey has made remarkable progress in its work and shows the ability of both as teachers. In their literary work the scholars showed that much care had been taken in their training, that all had their parts well committed and rendered them in a very pleasing manner.

Mrs. J. A. Saipply and daughters, Velma and Bertha, were the guests of Mrs. John Winch and family in Marion, Sunday.

Mrs. William Lindsey, of Monnett, was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. T. S. Crissinger, several days last week. She left, Thursday, for Marengo, where she will make an extended visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Isaac Tennant.

CHARLES L. SWARTZ GIVES SMALL NOTE

Twenty-Five Cents at 100 Per Cent. Thirty Years.

GEORGE W. WELSH HOLDER OF PAPER

Note Now Amounts to $134,217,728. Holder Will Not Try To Recover the Full Amount—The Note Is Regarded Good by an Attorney—The Result of Joke Years Ago.

Cincinnati, May 6.—It was a huge joke when, thirty years ago, Charles L. Swartz gave the following promissory note to his friend, George M. Welsh

"Cincinnati, O., Dec. 16, 1879:

"Thirty years after date I promise to pay George M. Welsh, in person only, the sum of twenty-five cents, with interest at 100 per cent.

"Charles L. Swartz."

Swartz and Welsh then were clerks with Louis Stix & Company. The former is now in the shoe business in St. Louis, while Welsh conducts a grocery in Cleves, Ohio. Both expected to be dead when the note fell due, but as each is in excellent health, the prospects for collection are good.

And how much will Welsh collect if he is alive December 16 next?

Well, if Swartz had figured it out first, he would never have given the note, for Welsh is entitled to exactly $134,217,728.

Attorney Stanley Struble, who has examined the note, says it is valid. Welsh will scarcely attempt to collect the full amount. In fact, it is believed that if he ever meets Swartz the entire note can be wiped out by a hearty offer to "buy."

The most popular religious delusion of our day is that discussing duties is the same thing as doing them.

WHEN RELIGION RAISED A ROW.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for May 9 Is, "Paul's First Missionary Journey—Antioch Pisidia," Acts 13:13-52.

The school of experience soon gives pupils their proper rating. Barnabas and Saul had set out from Antioch in Syria to do missinary work, and they were classified in this order and by these names. Now we find that the story is altered. It is "Paul and his company." The first man has naturally and inevitably risen to first place. Here we find his name changed from Saul to Paul. The new man had taken out a new name. John Mark drops from the company at this point, probably because he was not of as sturdy stuff as the leaders of the expedition, and could not face the hardships that were to be endured. Later he had to reckon with Paul on this account and was ready the means of dividing the two associates, Paul and Barnabas.

Sailing from Paphos in the island of Cyprus, where the last lesson was laid, the company came to Perga, in what is now called Asia Minor, and thence they went up to Antioch in Pisidia.—probably one of the sixteen Antiochs founded by Seleucis Nikator and named for his father. It must not be confounded with the great Antioch in Syria, where the disciples were first called Christians. Why Paul did not remain at Pergo has been a subject of conjecture. It is thought that the heat of summer, and the malaria which infested this low-lying city along the water, drove him up on to the high table-land where Antioch was situated. Ramsay thinks that the malaria which here entered Paul's system was his "thorn in the flesh," which he bore to the end of his life. In any case, some consideration drove the little band of missionaries over the perilous journey to Antioch.

A Point of Contact.

Like Jesus, Paul went to church on the Sabbath. He identified himself with all the best customs of his time and community. He knew that the synagogues were to be superseded, and that the worship was bare and faulty, and that the preaching was usually dry, unpalatable, and unnutritious pabulum. Nevertheless, Jesus and Paul went to the synagogue on the Sabbath. They found it a point of contact with the best agencies of their day. They identified themselves unequivocally with all religious tendencies, although their own beliefs extended quite beyond those entertained and taught by the synagogue. This attitude, which ever seeks a point of contact with the people whom it desires to serve, is an essential qualification in Christian work.

So Paul and Barnabas were shown to the rabbinical seats, and after the reading of the Law and the Prophets, the rulers of the synagogue called on them to speak. With the tact that always characterized him, Paul's sermon, or "midraish," as the Jews called it, was based upon the passages which had been read that morning. He recited the history which the Jews never tired of hearing, nd of course found it an easy path to the story of the Messiah who had come.

Paul was never satisfied to make general propositions. His sermons always ended in an application. He was a "Thou are the man" type of preacher. He left his hearers face to face with their personal responsibility in the case.

Stirring a City.

It had been many a long day since that synagogue had heard such a searching and sensational sermon as was preached, by the unexpected stranger on that Sabbath morning. It set the Jewish community by the ears. Whenever a genuine preacher appears in a neighborhood with a clear message of conviction, the latter is bound to make more talk than all the advertising he can do. People always have been and always will be interested in vital, spiritual truth. Rufus M. Jones says, "In his spiritual nature, man is incurably religious." The religion that is related to life can always get a hearing. As it was in Paul's day, so it is now. A great sermon makes itself talked about. The members of the synagogue entreated Paul and Barnabas to speak again the following Sabbath.

The implication is that this synagogue was an influential factor in the life of Antioch. Its outreach touched the entire city. Apparently it had to some degree solved the ever-present problem of making the church the center of the communal life. It must have delighted Paul's heart to see the way in which that synagogue was able to get after men in their social relationships, so that, as the narrative runs, "Next Sabbath almost the whole city was gathered together to hear the word of God."

Some Jealous Jews.

Sour, misanthropic, and ill-favored souls there always have been, whose greatest sorrow seems to be the happiness of other people. Of a naturally jealous disposition, they cannot view with equanimity the prosperity of anybody else. The world is full of these born detractors. The slang phrase of the days calls them "knockers;" and the philosophy of the street has coined words of keenest scorn for them. Even the man who gives least thought to questions of character and ethics perceives that the "knocker" is on the wrong track, and that he is a man to be avoided or reformed.

The Jews of Antioch had been delighted over the popularity which Paul's sermon had won for their synagogue, but when they found that the multitude followed Paul and disregarded them, they "were filled with jealousy." They would not stand aside for the sake of a great man and a great message.

Therefore they stirred up slander against the missionaries; even as heathens in all lands have fabricated the most outrageous and baseless slanders against missionaries. It is a common belief in many pagan communities that the missionaries steal children and make medicine out of their vital organs. Some of these rumors would seem to be too ridiculous to deserve notice, were it not that they are credited by the people for whom they are intended. These Jews appealed to the partisanship of the women of their community—and women are essentially partisan, and the chief defenders of all old institutions. Conservatism makes its last stand in the minds of women. They are the best advocates and the bitterest opponents. Whenever there is a race riot on the East Side of New York, it is the women who make most of the trouble.

A Missed Opportunity.

It was inevitable that the new Doctrine should spread beyond Jewish limits. There was no reason outside themselves why the Jews should not go along with it. In their condemnation of the liberality of Paul's message, they really condemned themselves. Our judgment of others inevitably judges us. By their attitude toward Paul and toward Christianity's wider spread, the Jews shut themselves off from the great opportunity in their history, and missed the very mission for which they had been set apart as a chosen people.

But they were impotent to stay the spread of the gospel. God's kingdom is bound to come. Man's only concern is whether it shall come by his help or in spite of him, and whether it shall come to him or pass him by. The great question of election which arises in this connection was well answered by Rev. Sam Jones, the evangelist, who said: "The 'elect' are the 'whosoever wills' and the 'non-elect' are the 'whosoever' won'ts.'"

Doing the Job.

"He that speaks the truth will find himself in sufficiently dramatic situations," says Professor Woodrow Wilson. There are crises constantly confronting the man who is animated, as was Paul, by the conviction, "This one thing I do." Whosoever is determined to do his own work at all hazards is bound to have a variety of experiences, but he and he alone will achieve great results. Mr. Moody used to say, "When men ask me, 'Moody, what is the secret of your success?' I reply, 'Go to work and stay at work and you will find it.'" Paul and Barnabas, like a glorious company of missionaries since, had set their hearts upon preaching the gospel to the regions beyond. Nothing could deter them. Antioch cast them out. Followed by slanders, abuse, ill-treatment, and probably physical violence, they were driven out of the borders of Pisidia.

But they still continued preaching. The cost mattered not at all to them; so long as Christ was preached Paul could stand anything. His attitude recalls a remark made the other day by Dr. Samuel N. Zwemer, of Arabia, the great authority upon Mohammedanism, who was speaking rather impatiently upon the mandlin sentimentality concerning missionary hardships: "It does not matter how much people have to suffer in this work. It does not matter how many missionaries we kill. It does not matter how much money we spend. The point is that missions are a war. War always costs. Our business is to go ahead and carry on the fighting and win the battle."

Paul did not hesitate to narrate his hardships, when engaged in controversy or counsel, or when they could profitably feather an arrow of argument; but he never allowed them to deter him from his main business. He was willing to get into innumerable rows for righteousness' sake—and did—but even so the coming of the Prince of Peace was hastened.

Harmon Will Retire from the Receivership of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton June 1—Nestor of the Seneca County Bar Dies. Charles E. Morris Is Held Under Bond for Criminal Assault.

Columbus, O., May 6. — The Ohio railway commission has ruled that express companies may not refuse proffered shipments, even though they may be what the companies term bulk packages. The matter was brought to the commission's attention by the refusal of the Adams Express company and the Wells Fargo company to accept packages of automobile tags sent out by the automobile registration department directed to automobile clubs in various cities, the tags to be delivered to members of the clubs. The decision means a saving to the state of $2,000 a year.

DENMAN GIVES LIQUOR DECISION

Attorney General Says It Can Be Advertised in Dry Territory.

Columbus, O., May 6.—Liquor advertisements may be inserted in newspapers in dry territory just the same as in that which is wet, Attorney General Denman holds in an opinion to the Prosecutor John T. Dean of Clinton county. The ruling is that this is not soliciting, which is prohibited by law. Advertising and soliciting are not identical, and it would be a strained and unnatural use of the latterterm to include the former in it.

SATURDAY - - - - - MAY 8

Preaching services will be held at Mt. Olive church, four miles west of Green Camp, Sunday, May 9. The morning services will be held at 10:45 o'clock and the evening services at 7:45 o'clock. Rev. M. C. Wiseley, of Green Camp, the pastor, will have charge.

At no other season of the year are people so poor. If you doubt it, ask the assessor.

It wouldn't surprise us a bit should it be discovered that the Findlay man, who has written a book in which he advocates paying labor five dollars for six hours' work, haggles over the payment of fifty cents to the man who mows his lawn.

Possibly Senator Aldrich was so busy figuring how to make a downward tariff cut upward in the tariff schedules that he didn't realize at the time that congress was wasting $50,000.

The people of Africa are complimenting Colonel Roosevelt on his marksmanship. They should have seen him shoot a message at congress.

Judging by its decision in the commodities case, the federal supreme court must labor under the impression that none of those railroad companies are able to put up for a new charter for the coal end of their business.

The Washington Star observes that Venezuelan politics is distinguished by two distinctly defined parties, the ins and the outs. We would like to see the Washington Sun pick Venezuelan politics out from the common run if it has no other characteristics by which it might be identified.

If this discussion of the commodities decision continues much longer it might be well for the federal supreme court to issue a chart by which its decision may be correctly interpreted.

In case Mr. Roosevelt should get a white rhinoceros we hope he will have the fortitude to forego the practice, so common to hunters, of having his picture taken as he stands with one foot on terra firma and the other on the fallen animal and assumes a Monte Cristo "the-world-is-mine" pose.

District Attorney Jerome sees in the newspapers a menace to the country's future. Come to think of it, the newspapers have been somewhat attentive to Mr. Jerome at times.

Still, Chillicothe should not be led away by any false hope. Irrigation simply develops life; it does not produce it.

In recognition of his services in diagnosing her trouble, Kansas is seriously considering the idea of electing William Allen White governor.

It must be something of a relief to Nadir Pasha to learn that the artistically told story of his death last week was wholly imaginary.

Castro claims that he resembles Napoleon, but had they resided in the same neighborhood it is more than probable that bill collectors would have been able to distinguish one from the other.

An Arch City man wants to know when to begin wearing a straw hat. Our answer would be that it is not so much a matter of season as individual nerve.

If he had been a real friend of the "irrigation" forces, that Hoosier would have gotten the lockjaw from drinking ice-water before pretty nearly all the state had gone dry.

Mr. Castro appears to believe that he yet has one good revolution hidden away somewhere in his system.

The magazines may know their business, but we can't help feeling that these thrillers from the African jungles are bound to discount, to some extent at least, the dollar-a-word narratives for future publication.

If Senator Dolliver will place his ear to the ground he may distinguish the army of wool growers coming after his scalp.

It must be a matter of extreme regret to Colonel Roosevelt that he did not have the services of some expert beaters-up when he went on his hunts after the grey wolves of the senate.

A Cleveland exchange says there are 11,000 poets in Ohio. Move to amend by inserting the words "self-confessed" before the word "poets."

It is apparent that the London scribes are fully as well qualified as naval critics as the American, but that doesn't give any of them marked excuse for abnormal chest development.

Wire nails have been reduced in price, but about the only living thing which is able to get away with nails without in a measure impairing its digestive apparatus is an ostrich.

West Virginia has a law, effective May 17, against pistol toteing. It's hard to imagine a state where legislation along that line is more greatly needed.

John L. Sullivan is reported as seriously considering the idea of going into the ministry. The idea appears a trifle odd at first glance, but possibly John might be able to accomplish as much good as some who are already in it. There's no telling when the call comes or who is to hear it.

If the Hon. James J. Jeffries is carrying about with him all the coin he has raked in since he signified the possibility of meeting Johnson, it's useless to worry about his physical condition.

"So Abdul Hamid retains eleven wives!" observed the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today. "Poor fellow. Think what carving three times a day, seven days a week, fifty-two weeks in a year, for a family like that means."

If we are to credit both Mr. Wickersham and the railroads the recent decision in the commodities clause case is unique in legal jurisprudence, in that both parties are satisfied.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Dr. S. N. D. North, director of the census, has accepted the invitation to deliver the eulogy on Carroll D. Wright, before the American Statistical Association, of which Colonel Wrigh was the president for fourteen years, succeeding General Francis A. Walker, director of the ninth and tenth censuses.

Miss Claudia McKenzie won the first prize and Mrs. Bradley Jones the second in the recent hat-trimming contest held by a club of women in New York. The first prize is to be the portrait of the winner painted by Ben Ali Haggin, the second a miniature of Mrs. Bradley Jones, painted by Martha Wheeler Baxter.

Charles M. Gormly, aged seventy-three, former secretary to Edward M. Stanton, secretary of war under President Lincoln, died in Pittsburg. Mr. Gormly was a member of one of the oldest Pittsburg families, his ancestors having settled there before the Revolution, and his great-grandfather having been a soldier in the Revolutionary war.

Mrs. E. N. Munsell, of Connecticut, made $1,000 last year raising white Holland turkey and, as she tells about it, the work does not seem so very hard. She is very careful with her broods and kills every chick that is not up to the mark, which shows what a woman can do when she thinks circumstances demand it, however painful the work may be.

Dr. Marion LeRoy Burton, the new president of Smith college, will be gone a year in Europe and in that time expects to learn much that will help him to a better administration. He says that many college presidents are hampered because they have to be constantly begging for money, but that Smith is amply endowed and this helped him in deciding to accept his presidency.

It will be two years before A. C. Dickinson, of Walla Walla, Washington, knows how much money 200 acres of land sold to Gustav Vollmer brought. Dickinson is to receive for each acre 100 bushel of wheat, and this wheat is to be delivered in two installments, 10,000 bushels this fall and $10,000 bushels next year. According to the present prices of wheat Dickinson would get $117.50 an acre, but the price next year may be as low as sixty cents a bushel.

JAMES BOYLE FOUND GUILTY

Beatty said he was on the train that took Boyle and Billy from Niles to Ashtabula. Bove was further identified by Frank Carter of Nottingham, conductor of the suburban car between Ashtabula and Nottingham.

Then the prosecution called Attorney James P. Whitla, Billy's father.

"I was at my father's house in New Wimington when I first heard that Billy was missing," Whitla said, beginning his story. "My wife met me at my office with a letter. I recognized the writing of my boy. I left the office with the ransom money in Cleveland, as instructed."

State's Case Short.

On cross-examination Whitla was asked if he did not meet Boyle after he left the grocery store in Cleveland where he left the ransom money.

"I did not," the father said.

Mrs. Lena Hendrickson, who kept the store where the ransom money was deposited, told a brief, but straightforward story of receiving the package from Whitla and turning it over to Boyle when he called. She was not cross-examined. Neither was William J. Walker, conductor of the train between Niles and Youngstown who identified Boyle as the man who had Billy on the train.

Police Captain Shattuck, of Cleveland, told of arresting Boyle on the street in that city.

"Boyle had a lady with him," Shattuck said. Shattuck also stated that Boyle told him he didn't know who Mrs. Boyle was; that he had just met her on the street and was taking her to the railroad. Shattuck was not cross-examined and then the prosecution rested. Boyle's attorneys retired with him for consultation.

KNACHEL'S RELEASE SUBJECT OF APPEAL

Man Is Without Means To Pay Fine and Costs.

PRISONER HELD IN THE COUNTY JAIL

Matter Is Carried to Attention of the County Commissioners Who May Release the Prisoner on Parole. Only Avenue to Liberty Is Through Action of County Commissioners.

Denied his freedom through habeas corpus by Judge B. G. Young, John Knachel has appealed his case to the county commissioners, who may parole him from jail. Knachel's wife has been working day and night to secure her husband's freedom. The Knachel's have two children.

Knachel is being held a prisoner under peculiar conditions. He was fined $50 and costs in the court of Mayor Louis Scherff for alleged violation of the Rose local-option law. Unable to pay his fine and costs, Mayor Scherff ordered him committed to jail. He is not held with the usual order "until the fine and costs are paid."

"He may stay there forever under the manner of his commitment," says Knachel's attorney, L. E. Myers. "The mayor put him there, but he can't get him out. If there was a stone pile in connection with the jail, Knachel could work and pay his fine, but he cannot do this."

Several prominent attorneys maintain that, under the law, Mayor Scherff should have sent Knachel to the Columbus workhouse instead of sending him to jail.

Tuesday afternoon, Knachel was taken before the county commissioners by Deputy Sheriff Cornelius Breen. Attorney Myers pleaded his client's case, and the commissioners took the matter of his parole under advisement. On the recommendation of the mayor, it is said that Knachel will be released.

INCREASE IS MADE IN CAPITAL STOCK

Marion Steam Shovel Company Plans Improvements.

The Marion Steam Shovel company, Marion's leading industrial institution, Tuesday, filed at Columbus a certificate to increase its capital stock from a million to a million and a half dollars.

The increased capital is to be used on the extensive improvements which the company has recently made, is at present making and some contemplated but not yet begun.

The company recently completed a fine storage-house, eighty by 147 feet in size, for the safe keeping of patterns, and is at present constructing a fine new office building 150 by 150 feet in size and a pattern-makers' building eighty by 150 feet in dimensions.

The directors are now considering the question of a new erecting building, and it is quite probable that it will be constructed.

CURRY WILL REMAIN WITH ERIE COMPANY

Expects To Be Employed as a Civil Engineer.

Mrs. Sarah Jackson, of Marion, widow of J. W. C. Jackson, who was shot by H. R. Curry, arrived here, Wednesday morning, and secured from County Clerk Hare the suit of clothes that was worn by her husband when he was shot and which was used as an exhibit.

Tuesday afternoon, H. R. Curry secured from Mr. Hare the two enlarged photographs of the scene where the shooting was committed.

H. R. Curry, before leaving for Marion, Tuesday afternoon, informed the Union-Republican that, after a short vacation, he expected to be employed by the Erie railroad as a civil engineer.—Wyandot Union-Republican.

He Came After Team.

Mat Seng, who was implicated in the theft of the harness from the Fleischman company, at Cleveland, a little over three weeks ago, and which was recovered in this city, came down from Cleveland, Wednesday, to secure his team and wagon. The outfit was at Miller's barn. Seng having skipped out and left it on learning of the arrest of his two companions in this city. When he first entered the deal, with his companions, Seng claims he was an innocent party to the theft. Later he had knowledge that the harness was stolen, but still remained a partner to the deal. He gave himself up in Cleveland and pleading guilty to being implicated in trying to dispose of the stolen property, was fined $25 and costs. Thomas Logan, Charles Ward and the colored barn-man, were assessed similar fines and costs and given workhouse sentences.

Murray, resides at Coshocton, and for this reason there is some doubt as to Probate Judge W. S. Spencer's jurisdiction in the matter.

W. S. Spencer, W. A. Mickley, T. M. Cunningham, C. B. Jenkins, W. S. Stafford and C. Z. Zachman were the newly-elected members of the board present, C. E. Sawyer, J. F. Lust and A. H. Kling, other members, being absent from the city. The older members of the board present were F. E. Guthery, J. H. Clark, J. E. Waddell, C. L. Allen, L. B. McNeal, E. C. Smith and J. S. Kilbury. The board organized by electing E. C. Smith, president; J. F. Lust, vice president; J. S. Kilbury, recording secretary; L. B. McNeal, treasurer.

The meeting was the most enthusiastic held during the past year. The reports of the various departments showed the past year of the association to have been a prosperous one. The attendance in the gymnasium during the year was 3,027. The number of baths taken by the members was 10,291, while 4,165 games were bowled on the bowling alleys. A new feature will be added to the association in the way of a county membership. In order that the men and boys of the country and village districts of the county may have a club-house and a place to meet friends or visit while in the city, county membership tickets will be issued at a cost of two dollars. These tickets will entitle the holders to baths and all other privileges of the association with the exception of the gymnasium. It is the idea to establish the association as a "clearing house," where men of the county and villages, who hold county membership tickets, can meet to transact private business or pass the time socially.

A. H. KLING RETIRES AFTER LONG SERVICE

A Savings and Loan Association Holds Election.

JOHN E. WADDELL CHOSEN PRESIDENT

Is the Successor to Mr. Kling, Who Fills the Position Over Twenty Years—The Company the Most Heavily Capitalized in City—Story of a Financial Success.

At a meeting of the directors of the Marion Building, Savings & Loan company, Wednesday evening, John E. Waddell was elected president; Frank A. Huber, vice president, and E. Durfee, secretary. Mr. Waddell becomes president of the company after having acted in that capacity by virtue of his being vice president at the time of the resignation of A. H. Kling, who had been president for over twenty years.

On account of the fact that he does not spend a great deal of his time in Marion of late years and because of his anxiety to be relieved largely of business cares, Mr. Kling handed in his resignation last fall. Since that time Mr. Waddell, who is also president of the Marion National bank, has been the acting head of this well-known building and loan association, the authorized capital stock of which is the largest of any similar institution in Marion county. The company's authorized capital stock is now $2,000,000, having been increased from $1,000,000.

Organized March 9, 1888, the Marion Building, Savings & Loan company has had a remarkable history—a record of financial achievement. It has never lost a dollar since it was authorized.

As practically all of its authorized capital stock of $1,000,000 was taken up, it was necessary to make an increase of another million in order to take care of the company's phenomenal growth.

MARION BOY'S VIEW OF DISTANT COUSINS

Fred B. Crow Talks of the British Isles.

LINES OF PROGRESS FOLLOWED SLOWLY

The People Are Warm-Hearted, but Very Conservative—The Visitor Comes in Contact with Much Wealth and Much Cruel Poverty. Result of Recent Reforms.

Fred B. Crow, who has been a resident of the British Isles for the past eighteen months, and who is now the guest of relatives in this city, talks very interestingly of the subjects of King Edward, their customs, manner of living and methods of doing business.

Mr. Crow was not long in discovering that the energy which characterizes the American people is sadly lacking throughout England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales. The people are not engaged in the mad race for money as they are in this country and their pleasures and holidays are almost sacred institutions, the violation of which they will not consider for a moment.

Everything is conducted along conservative lines. Everything is heavy and slow. The climate is heavy, the meals are heavy and the atmosphere in which the average person moves is depressing to the American. The great accomplishments of the people are due to their bulldog tenacity and conservative ways wholly. Lines of progress are not hurriedly laid nor swiftly followed, but like the tortoise the Britons get there just the same.

New inventions are not seized upon with avidity, but are usually rejected as unnecessary and useless until the other fellow tries them out and carries them through the experimental stage to a point where competition forces general adoption. Electric lines in England are comparatively of recent date. Any invention that has to do with the discarding of hand labor is never looked upon with suspicion, and its adoption is very distasteful. The Briton likes to live along the lines of his grandfathers and really prefers the old bus of generations departed to the up-to-date transportation born of electricity.

As to the home life in the country, there is much opulence and much poverty. The class distinctions are drawn rigidly and observed by all. The upper class looks with some measure of toleration on the middle class, but the latter views the lower class with contempt and intolerance. The people of all classes are given much to heavy eating and drinking. Mutton and fish is the staple diet of the lower and middle classes and there are thousands of skilled workmen who never tasted a porterhouse steak. Skilled mechanics receive a wage of about $4.25 a week. They reside in scantily furnished houses, but as a rule are happy and contented and think the country the only one worth considering on the globe. This good opinion of the country holds good in all classes, but when one takes a trip to America he seldom if ever goes back. Among the lower classes the poverty is sickening. Men, women and children are pinched and hungry a greater part of the year, and, as a result of this, a series of reforms and a pension system have resulted which threatens to pauperize thousands. The average person suffering extreme poverty once given a measure of relief is not inclined to regard it as a stepping-stone to helping himself, but is rather inclined to settle back in easy-going ways and make himself an object of charity for all time. The old age pension system also has a tendency against thrift and economy in laying up a store for old age.

In spite of the muggy climate and the heavy drinking of all classes long life is the rule rather than the exception. The easy-going ways and spirit of contentment with little are held largely responsible for this.

Throughout the whole country the women are gradually crowding the men out of employment and the woman is becoming the wage-earner and supporter of the family rather than the man.

As to business opportunity there is little in most lines to attract the average American. The people take to the amusements offered by the Americans, but in a commercial way they will not buy foreign made stuff if the English make is obtainable. A standard advertisement is an announcement that a given product is made in England by English workmen. Much American made stuff is sold in England at prices ranging some lower than they do here, but it is only sold where the product of English workmen is not equal. As to German made products, the English want as little as possible. There is bitterness in every Briton's heart against Germany, and observation leads the visitors to think that about the only thing that prevents a great war is the eternal preparedness of both countries for such an emergency. Each country to a certain extent is afraid of the other and a conflict will be delayed just as long as it is possible. The German visitor gets mighty little consideration in Great Britain, and the people when they take it into their heads to let a person alone have the operation reduced to a fine art. The Britons like the average American, but show some measure of jealousy. The attitude of the individual is seldom unfriendly. It often takes a long time to penetrate the Briton's shell and win his confidence and open friendship, but when he throws off his conservativeness he is found to be a warm-hearted chap. He is however never demonstrative or effusive.

While England is lacking as a whole in the progressive spirit the country contains some of the finest roads in the world and it is the Mecca for motoring. Travelers from all over the world stop for a season in the country to enjoy the pleasure of a tour by auto.

The people throughout the country are always agreeable and pleasant to their guests, but the accommodations at the various inns are not everything one accustomed to good living and the comforts of the best homes or hotels might wish. The climate is disagreeable throughout a greater part of the year and the average hotels and dwelling places are sadly lacking in warmth. The cooking so far as the American taste for good things counts is abominable. Everything is fried wherever it is possible and although the guest may have his food prepared as he likes, there is always a disposition manifest on the part of the cook to thrust his or her notions of cooking upon the visitor, and gradually by degrees one is worked up to the real English liking for heavy meals.

Outside of a few of the great cities the hotels are bad, that is, they fall far below the American standard.

The traveling by rail is also unpleasant as the compartment cars are used exclusively and the compartments are usually without warmth or good ventilation. The passenger is locked in his compartment and must remain there until his proper station is reached when he is released by the station officials in due form.

Speaking of up-to-date improvements, Mr. Crow states that typewriters such as are found in almost every American office are a novelty in the country and the makers have so far failed to make much progress in educating the people to the use of them. All legal documents and nearly all correspondence is carried on in the good old-fashioned way, which will probably remain in vogue for many years to come.

As to clothing, it is comparatively cheap and of very good material. The workmanship in the tailoring is not good, however, the tailors appearing to care more for quality than fit and it is seldom that a suit is well fitted to the wearer.

The people are strict Sabbatarians and are very careful in the observance of their church duties. The saloons are the only public houses allowed to remain open on Sunday and they are well regulated. The licenses are issued by an examining magistrate each year and the magistrate takes into careful account the conduct of a saloonist and the kind of a place he keeps when a license is renewed. An effort has been made in the last couple of years to reduce the number of saloons by refusal to issue licenses, but in each instance where the license is refused, the former holder is reimbursed by the government for his loss.

As a whole Mr. Crow finds the British isles an interesting spot and he has had some measure of success in his business. He will return to England, May 20.

CHARLES HOLE TAKEN BEFORE JUSTICE GOMPF

His Bond Is Fixed at $1,500 by the Justice.

Will Give Bond After the Present Grand Jury Concludes Its Work. Hole has Wealthy Relatives Who Are Expected To Furnish Money.

Charles H. Hole was arraigned on a charge of embezzling $1,000 from the Wells Fargo & Company express, before Justice Charles E. Gompf, Tuesday afternoon. He was represented by Attorneys Scofield, Durfee & Scofield and waived the preliminary examination. His bond was fixed at $1,500. Hole says he will furnish bond, but that he will await the action of the grand jury, which is now in session, before he leaves jail. If he is not indicted by the present grand jury, his case will hang over until the grand jury meets again in September.

It is understood that Hole's relatives, who are wealthy, will furnish the necessary funds with which to fight the former transfer clerk's case in the local courts.

At Tuesday's preliminary hearing, Attorney Fred E. Guthery represented the state, having been employed by Prosecuting Attorney Charles L. Justice, who was extremely busy at the time with the grand jury.

Since his arrival here, Hole has been visited by a large number of friends. A member of the Tally Wag club, Hole enjoyed a wide acquaintance while a resident of Marion. He takes his arrest in a philosophical manner and has no complaint to make. It is said that his bride of less than a month will join him at Versailles, his former home, shortly after his release here on bond.

WAR ON THE COMMON FLY IS IN PROGRESS

Is "Most Dangerous Animal on Earth," Says Expert.

WORK BEING DONE IN NEW YORK CITY

Investigation Shows the Fly Is Common Carrier of Disease—The Chief Means of Spreading Typhoid. What Some of the Investigators Think—The Only Remedy.

Even if all our chief cities and most of our modern industries have been thoroughly muckraked, the field has not yet been exhausted There remain the insects. To be sure, the mosquito has been thoroughly exposed. Everybody knows that he or she is a carrier of disease and a menace to the health.

Now it's the turn of the house fly and the Merchants' association, which neglects few chances to engage in a crusade, has declared its doom The first gun in the warfare is a pamphlet of forty-eight pages: "The House Fly at the Bar. Indictment. "Guilty or Not Guilty."

Trust the pamphlet, which is not merely an indictment but a brief for the people, and there is little doubt of the verdict The house fly is guilty—guilty of many things, but chiefly of transmitting typhoid

The Merchants' association committee on pollution of the waters of New York, of which the busy Mr Edward Hatch, Jr., is the chairman, is really conducting the work. Their first move was in 1907, when they published a report by Daniel D. Jackson on the "Pollution of New York Harbor as a Menace to Health by the Dissemination of Intestinal Disease Through the Agency of the Common House Fly." Mr. Jackson showed to the satisfaction of scientists at that time that "sewage discharged into large or small bodies of water, even if such water was not used for drinking purposes, furnished feeding grounds for flies, from which they gathered and spread the germs of typhoid fever and other intestinal diseases."

In a later paper Mr. Jackson showed how he had reached this conclusion. For one thing, flies captured in the foul sewage charged waters of the river were captured, starved and shown to be traveling back and fro between the filth and the nearby homes and restaurants where food was constantly exposed. A microscopic examination showed that these flies carried disease bacteria.

Other experiments and the conclusions drawn from them are thus summed up:

A careful study of the seasonal prevalence of flies by means of daily counts from fly cages in different parts of the city showed that they were active in large numbers only in the comparatively few hot weeks of summer, while the health statistics showed that these were the weeks when an abnormal number of cases of typhoid fever and diarrhoea were contracted. The reported number of cases of these diseases rose with the rise in the prevalence of flies and fell with but slight lag with the decrease in the number of flies trapped.

Finally maps were made showing by black dots the location of every fatal case of intestinal disease during the fly season. A black belt was found to run along the waterfront. Most of the deaths were within three blocks of the shore line.

The danger to health is greatest in parts of the city where sanitary precautions are most neglected, but even if you live in a comparatively well cared for part of town do not receive the fly into your home as a harmless visitor, for he may come in a carriage or on horseback from the filthiest spot in the city.

Hitherto the fly has been regarded complacently as a harmless nuisance and considered to be an annoying creature with great persistence and excessive familiarity. Regarded in the light of recent knowledge, the fly is more dangerous than the tiger or the cobra. Worse than that, he is at least in our climate, much more to be feared than the mosquito, and may easily be classed the world over as the most dangerous animal on earth

Following up the work, the committee wrote to health officers throughout the country asking their opinions and particularly as to the danger of the fly as compared with impure milk and polluted water in the spread of typhoid The letter explained. "We ask this question because some authorities have recently made the statement that typhoid infection from these causes is insignificant as compared with that through the medium of flies"

There was no general agreement on the comparative importance of the various ways of spreading the disease, but there was an almost unanimous expression of belief that the fly is a source of grave danger! So general is this feeling that a number of state and city boards of health have issued elaborate posters outlining the precautions which should be taken- such as screening food and covering and removing filth Some are even illustrated with pictures which may be instructive, but are certainly unpleasant

The Merchants' association's art pamphlet ought not to be overlooked As a frontispiece we have a fly being led up for trial before a long-haired and long-bearded Uncle Sam. The malefactor stands between a policeman and a district attorney and all three are of a size New York Sun.

OBITUARIES.

Sarah A. Gillispia Debolt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Gillispia, was born August 30, 1860, in Union county, and was united in marriage to Grafton F. Debolt, August 20, 1879. To this union were born five children, Mrs. J. E. Fisher, of Cardington; J. O. Debolt, of Mortlach, Canada; Cecil, Carl and Ray Debolt, of Girard, Kansas. Besides the children, she is survived by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Gillispia, of Parsons, Kansas, a husband, five grandchildren, two brothers and four sisters: L. I. Gillispia, of Girard, Kansas; A. S. Gillispia, of Parsons, Kansas; Mrs. A. E. Tanner and Mrs. O. D. Bonham, of Stafford, Kansas; Mrs. O. Redmon, of Gailsburg, Kansas, and Mrs. E. S. Jarvis, of Kansas City, Missouri. Mrs. Debolt lived the greater part of her life in Union county, having moved to Girard, Kansas, eighteen months ago, with her husband and three younger children. She was afflicted by cancer, having been taken seriously ill about five weeks ago. She was a patient, cheerful sufferer until her death, which occurred at Mount Carmel hospital, Pittsburg, Kansas, Monday, April 19, 1909. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church of Girard, having placed her faith in God when but a girl. Her beautiful Christian character was a living testimony of her true fellowship with Him. The sweet and kindly qualities which she possessed made her home an ideal one. Forgetful of self, thoughtful of others, her cheerful disposition won for her the love and admiration of a host of friends. To the sorrowing children she was all that the sacredness of the word, "mother" could mean. But heaven has claimed her, and our loss is heaven's gain. ***

Catherine Reiner was born in Waldo township, October 29, 1839. She died April 24, 1909, aged sixty-nine years, five months and twenty-six days. She was the daughter of Godfrey and Eva Reiner. In early life she was brought to the Lord in holy baptism. She was confirmed in St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church in Delaware county, east of Norton. From the day of her confirmation she remained a true Christian, and a loyal church member. During her afflictions, she was patient and submissive, firmly believing that the Lord's ways are the best. She was of a family of eight children, two brothers and three sisters having preceded her She is survived by one brother, Jacob Reiner, of Marion, and a sister, Mrs. Susanna Conklin, of Waldo, at whose home after a long illness she departed this life. ***

THE CROP CONDITIONS THROUGHOUT THE STATE

Reports Received from Various Localities.

WHEAT PROSPECTS EXTREMELY BAD

The Losses in Livestock During the Winter and Spring Are Very Low. Many Acres Are Seeded to Oats Owing to Failure of the Wheat. Berry Prospects Very Fair.

The following report represents the estimated area and condition of the crops named, as computed from the returns received from the official correspondents of the department of agriculture of the state:

Wheat, prospect compared with an average, 66 per cent.

Spring barley, area sown compared with last year, 87 per cent.

Winter barley, prospect compared with an average, 71 per cent.

Barley, total area sown last fall, 28 per cent; sown this spring, 72 per cent.

Rye, prospect compared with an average, 74 per cent.

Oats, area for 1908 as returned by township assessors, 1,271,886 acres; area sown this year compared with 1908, 104 per cent; estimated area for the harvest of 1909, 1,324,119 acres.

Clover, average date of seeding, March 25; acreage sown compared with last year, 103 per cent.

Horses, losses during winter and spring, 1.7 per cent.

Cattle, losses during winter and spring, 1.4 per cent

Sheep, losses during winter and spring, 2.7 per cent.

Hogs, losses during winter and spring, 2.3 per cent.

Berries, Prospect compared with an average, 84 per cent.

The present wheat prospect shows a slight improvement since the issuance of the April report, being now estimated at sixty-six per cent., compared with an average, as against sixty-two per cent. reported one month ago. The prospect varies greatly over the state, ranging from eighteen per cent. in Warren county to 101 per cent. reported from Brown county. In thirty-two counties the estimated prospect is below sixty per cent; eighteen counties report from sixty to seventy per cent.; fourteen counties have a fair prospect, ranging from seventy to eighty per cent; eleven counties report from eighty to ninety per cent.; ten counties estimate the prospect between ninety and 100 per cent.; two counties report that the present prospect is for a full average crop, while, as stated above, Brown county estimates the prospects at better than an average. No material damage by insect pests has been reported. Many correspondents note the abandonment of wheat fields. The general prospect is most discouraging and the harvest will fall far short of a fair average.

As anticipated, the area seeded to oats is greater than that of one year ago, due principally to the failure of wheat. Last year the township assessors reported 1,271,886 acres sown to oats, and the departments' official correspondents now estimate that, in comparison with that area, the present acreage seeded is 104 per cent., or 1,324,119 acres.

A large acreage of clover has been seeded.

Berry prospects are estimated at eighty-four per cent., compared with an average.

Live stock generally in good condition, with no unusual losses during the winter and spring.
